(By United Press)

MARIETTA—On the wooded hillside where a few pioneers watched the inauguration 150 years ago of General Arthur St. Clair as the first governor of the Northwest territory, President Roosevelt tomorrow will address an expected throng of 100,000 persons.

The president's address at 9:30 a. m. in Muskingum park will signalize the formal opening of the Northwest territory's sesqui-centennial celebration. Mr. Roosevelt also will dedicate a new national memorial, "The Start Westward of the Nation," designed by Gutzon Borglum.

The presidential special of 11 cars is scheduled to arrive here at 9 a. m. and depart an hour later for Covington, Ky.

Former Governor George White, chairman of the federal Northwest territory commission, will introduce Mr. Roosevelt. Representatives of five other states, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, that formed the territory will serve on the reception committee.

Under the direction of secret service agents extensive policing plans have been made to guarantee the safety of the presidential party. Seventy-five Ohio state highway patrolmen have been sent here to take charge of traffic along the parade route Mr. Roosevelt and his group will take to the park. The highway patrolmen will be aided by squads from Indiana and Illinois police barracks; 300 men from American Legion posts here and at Parkersburg, W. Va., and 600 Boy Scouts.

All automobile traffic will be banned along the parade route during the president's stay and pedestrians will not be allowed off the sidewalks.

Marietta has taken on a holiday air for the presidential visit. The entire city is bedecked with patriotic decorations. Along the parade line tomorrow groups in period costumes will be posed before the Campus Martius museum, the Ohio

'Farmer's Diary' Wins High Honor In U. S. Contest

A daily feature of The Mansfield News-Journal won recognition in a national contest, as the "best entry from the state of Ohio," it was announced today by the Country Home Magazine, published by the Crowell company, New York City.

"A Farmer's Diary," by Calvin A. Byers, which was first published by The News-Journal and is now being published in seven other Ohio newspapers, was given a certificate of merit as the best entry from the state, in the annual contest of country newspaper correspondents. A trip to New York City and Washington is awarded the first prize winner each year.

The country correspondents, usually from small towns and rural districts are contributors to city and town newspapers. Byers is a teacher of English at Senior High school, and operates a farm near Lexington.

Asphalt Firm Here Sued In 'Hot Mix' Case

Taxpayer Asks Damages of $61,000 In Action on File In Columbus.

A third taxpayer's "hot mix" suit was filed in Franklin county courts today asking $61,623 damages from the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company, state highway officials, including I. R. Ault, Ashland, division 3 highway director, and three bonding companies, dispatches from Columbus said

The suit, filed by Donald L. Littell, Columbus, charges that the state paid too much for "hot mix" materials for road improvements in Crawford and Summit counties.

Other defendants named in the petition are John Jaster, jr., state highway director; G. Murray Anderson, assistant director, and Fred L. Biechele, former deputy director of the bureau of maintenance in the state highway department

Asks Twice Amount of Loss.

The suit accuses the defendants of defrauding the state of $30,811 in excess charges for road materials, and states that "hot mix" was purchased from the Mansfield firm at $16.18 per cubic yard when $8 a yard would have been a fair price. Under the anti-trust laws, the suit asks double the amount of the alleged loss.

The petition contends that the law provides that no contract can be awarded which exceeds the estimate on a road project by more than five per cent. In cases cited in the action, contracts were awarded at 33⅓ per cent above the estimate.

The Mansfield Asphalt Paving company is a member of the so-called "Hot Mix association", members of which was named defendant in similar suits filed several months ago by Mrs. Agnes B. Dickinson of Columbus.

An injunction was granted in Franklin county court last week enjoining the state from paying $100,000 to contractors who allegedly had overcharged the state for "hot mix" materials

The Story of Barbara Hutton

A Child Princess In an Ivory Tower

Barbara Hutton in 1931—in London to be presented to the British court.

Returning to New York from a world cruise in 1932. She has traveled extensively.

In 1933—at the time of the announcement of her engagement to the late Prince Alexis Mdivani.

This is the first of six articles on the life of Countess Barbara Hutton von Haugwitz-Reventlow by Helen Welshimer, well-known writer.

By HELEN WELSHIMER

NEW YORK—Inquiry into the shrouded early life of Countess Barbara Hutton von Haugwitz-Reventlow today threw new light on the strange medley of circumstances which now have brought her at the age of 26 to the journey's end of her second venture into international romance

Little is known of her early years but that little speaks volumes. For it reveals that she was a child princess in an ivory tower, insulated by walls of wealth from the real life around her, as few children of the modern world ever have been.

She grew up in a world of extravagant fancies, immersed in romantic poetry and fiction, cloistered, guarded, isolated, fostering dreams When she grew up, she met men but she did not marry them. She married the dream princes who came to her in her lonely childhood in the dream tower.

Her Dream World.

Barbara's own timid essays into poetry—published in a thin burgundy-colored colume in 1934—clearly reveal the dream world in which she lived. And we ourselves can go back to Tennyson's "Lady of Shalott" for a hint as to her early years·

"But who hath seen her wave her hand?
Or at the casement seen her stand?
Or is she known in all the land,
The Lady of Shalott?"

No, she was not known in all the land—the land where the nickels and dimes were flowing into the cash registers that still today are ringing up her fabulous fortune. They did not let her go to school, not even one of those ultra-exclusive private schools where other little rich girls are sent to acquire some semblance of the common touch.

She never had a chance to taste that rough and early shirt sleeve democracy that had opened the paths of opportunity for Grandpa Woolworth—Grandpa Woolworth who himself before he died acquired delusions of grandeur and a hankering thirst for royal gestures.

Governesses, tutors, older people in the service of great wealth reared her. An only child she had not even the leveing play of brothers and sisters.

Travel, Travel.

She never knew the security of one sandpile, one bed and one swing. She was always going some place else to live. Her time was divided between Europe and America. When she sailed no one

'NOT THE MAN,' SAYS FREDERICK

Prince, Ex-Kaiser's Grandson, Denies He's Count's Rival for Barbara's Love.

By CHARLES A. SMITH
(INS Staff Correspondent)

LONDON—With the most emphatic denial. "I am not the 'gentleman in London'," Prince Frederick of Prussia today deepened the mystery of the identity of the man whom Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow allegedly wanted to "shoot like a dog."

The 26-year-old prince, grandson of former Kaiser Wilhelm, confirmed in an exclusive interview with International News Service that he was acquainted with Countess Barbara, but.

"I am not in love with Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow," he said.

"Nor have I ever challenged Count Haugwitz-Reventlow to a duel.

"I authorize you to deny that I

2 Postal Veterans Retire After 72 Years of Service

Frank Alger, Appointed In 1901, Carried Same Route 31 Years; FitzSimmons Named to Post In 1903.

With 72 years of combined service behind them, two of Mansfield's older postal workers will retire from the force tomorrow. They are Frank C. Alger, 75 Sycamore street, and Walter C. FitzSimmons, 24 Wise avenue.

Alger retires after 37 years of delivering mail to Mansfield families, while FitzSimmons will leave the stamp window after having worked as a carrier and clerk for 35 years. Both were appointed when the Mansfield postoffice was on the first floor of the Masonic Temple, North Main street.

Was Substitute 5 Years.

Alger received his appointment under Postmaster Nelson Ozier, first as a substitute carrier on Aug. 1, 1901, and as a regular carrier on Feb. 15, 1906.

The first years as a substitute, he was assigned to various routes over the city but for the past 31 years he has carried the same route on West Third street between Walnut and Sycamore and Branch streets.

When he started that route he had 255 families to serve and out of that number only 11 of the original families or their children remain.

One of the remarkable phases of his record is that in 37 years he

MERCURY SOARS

Heads Toward Season's Heat Record; Relief in Sight.

Encouraged by a torrid sun, the mercury climbed to 86 degrees at noon today and promised to surpass the season s previous high of 91 degrees established June 24.

Relief from the heat wave which spread over the midwest was in sight by Friday when local thundershowers are expected to bring a temperature drop. The weather will continue fair and warm tonight, however, the forecast said.

Despite temperatures which reached 90 degrees yesterday in many sections of Ohio, only one fatality was reported in the state James L. Anderson, 44, died at Bellaire after he was overcome by the heat while working on a WPA project.

The mercury reached 88 in Mansfield yesterday and fell to 61 during the night.

MORGAN SUIT STIRS UP NEW GRIEF IN TVA

Ousted Chairman Files Suit for Back Pay, Challenges Ouster by President.

DENIES HIS AUTHORITY

Action Followed by Arrival in Knoxville of Donahey, Head of Impending Inquiry.

(By United Press)

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—The Tennessee Valley Authority, object of a congressional investigation, was further troubled today by Dr. Arthur E. Morgan's suit for reinstatement to the chairmanship, from which he was ousted by President Roosevelt for "contumacy."

Dr. Morgan filed his suit late yesterday, demanding both his former job and $2,900 back salary, at about the same time that Sen. Vic Donahey, of Ohio, arrived from Washington to preside over a joint senate-house investigation of TVA that he said would begin Monday.

Morgan filed his case before Chancellor A. E. Mitchell in state chancery court, since his claim was for less than $3,000 and therefore not a federal court matter.

'Attempted Removal Illegal.'

"The attempted removal of the complainant from the office as a member of the board was and is illegal and void for the reason that such removal could be accomplished only by a concurrent resolution of the senate and house of representatives of the United States as provided in the TVA act, and no such resolution was passed," the petition said.

The TVA board, and the two directors, Harcourt A. Morgan and David E. Lilienthal, were named defendants. They have until July 22 to file their answer.

Dr. Morgan's place on the board has not been filled. Harcourt A. Morgan was elevated to the chairmanship when Dr. Morgan left.

Committee Gets Grievances.

After he had declined to explain his grievances to President Roosevelt, Dr. Morgan said that he had been saving them for a congressional investigation, which had not been authorized at that time. In preparation for his testimony at the investigation, the congressional committee permitted him to examine TVA files to which he no longer had access.

RULES ON FORD

NLRB Examiner Says Company Should Recognize UAW.

WASHINGTON — (UP) — A national labor relations board trial examiner recommended today that the Ford Motor company reinstate 192 workers and grant sole bargaining rights to the United Automobile Workers Union for 837 employes at its St. Louis, Mo., plant.

The St. Louis case marked the first time that the board has recommended to the Ford company that it grant exclusive bargaining rights to the Committee for Industrial Organization affiliate.

The St. Louis plant allegedly violted the labor relations law by refusing to bargain with the law, it was charged

The Ford company contended that it should not be forced to rehire 61 of the men because it beheves that each has been guilty of unlawful and wrongful acts

124 AT WORK AS WPA JOBS OPEN

450 Others to Be Added to City, County Projects in Next Two Weeks.

Jobs were provided today for 124 of Richland county's unemployed as two WPA projects got under way, and a third was expanded. At least 450 more men are expected to be placed on city and county projects within the next two weeks.

Work on the $75,000 Woodland waterworks project and the county's $1,000,000 road and bridge program was launched this morning, with 50 men employed on each.

Enlargement of the project calling for transcribing and binding county and city records put 24 more men and women to work. Eleven are employed at the city building, six on county records and seven on Shelby records.

Fifty men certified from county relief rolls started the North Bowman street road improvement project today, and County Engineer Howard C. Sword hoped to bring the total of employed in the county to 388 within two weeks. Fifty more will start tomorrow on county bridge work, and others will be added at three-day intervals until the quota is reached, Sword said.

The 50 workers on the waterworks project were transferred here from the Bellville sewage project, and another 150 men will go to work in the city later this month, city officials said

In all, nearly 1,000 men will be provided with jobs under the county and city projects when the programs are at their peak, WPA officials estimated

BRITAIN ACTS AS TERRORISM FLARES ANEW

Sends Warship to Haifa Where 131 Were Killed or Wounded in Bitter Clashes.

DISORDERS SPREADING

Bomb Exploded in Marketing Center Causes Flare-up; Mobs Defy Police.

(By Associated Press)

JERUSALEM—The British government today ordered the 7,550-ton cruiser Emerald to Haifa, where 131 persons have been killed or wounded in two days of rioting.

The blackest Holy Land situation since the bloody Arab general strike of 1936 caused the call for reinforcements.

Official sources said 22 Arabs and six Jews had died and 92 Arabs and 11 Jews had been wounded since a bomb yesterday fanned Arab-Jewish strife into new turmoil.

Due In Palestine.

The Emerald, homeward bound from the East Indies, was diverted to Haifa from Malta and was due at the Palestine port today.

Six Arabs were severely injured by a bomb explosion in the old section of Jerusalem today as tension, created by the bloodiest racial disorders since the World war, grew throughout the Holy Land.

Unidentified assailants fired on a group of Jewish laborers in Haifa's mixed quarter, killing one and wounding seven.

Two Jews were killed Tuesday at the scene of today's explosion. A bomb explosion in the center of Haifa, Palestine's chief port, yesterday killed 18 Arabs and five Jews.

Seventy persons were injured in the sudden flareup in Haifa.

The bomb explosion in the open air market near police headquarters quickly inflamed the crowds and a major riot broke out.

A mob, defying hastily summoned police reinforcements, stoned passing automobiles and buses and shot to death Tuvia Dounia, 55, brother-in-law of Chaim Weizmann, president of the world Zionist organization. Dounia had stepped from a car to rescue an Arab police who was knifed in the frenzied street battle.

CONSIDERS MARTIAL LAW

LONDON — (INS) — The British government is contemplating establishment of full martial law throughout Palestine as the result of renewed Arab-Jewish disorders which took a toll of almost 30 lives.

Dispatch of an additional brigade of 5,000 troops to reinforce two brigades already in Palestine will be expedited.

MAKES CHANGE

Bus Company Moves Up Early Morning Starting Time.

A slight change in the departure time of early morning bus runs, under the uniform 20-minute service plan which goes into effect Saturday was announced today by officials of the Mansfield Rapid Transit, Inc

Explaining that they had found that the runs scheduled to leave Fourth and Main streets at 5:50 a. m., would work a hardship on workers who are due at work at 6, officials said they had moved the starting time back to 5:45 to allow those workers to reach their places of employment more comfortably.

Clearing up a possible misinterpretation of the new through Glessner - Reformatory line, company officials said 20-minute service would be maintained over the route as far as Vine and Newman streets, with an hourly run to the Reformatory.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y.—(INS)—Remaining under an oxygen tent in his battle for recovery, Benjamin Cardozo, United States supreme court justice, failed to show any improvement today.

City's Relief Costs Up $550 In June; Madison Expense Cut

Mansfield's relief costs climbed $559 during June, while Madison township showed a decrease of nearly $400, with the result that the total costs for the two subdivisions were slightly less than $200 more than for May, Earl Nist, director of relief for both the city and the township reported today.

The total spent was $18,061, Nist reported. Administrative costs were $1,168, about 6½ per cent of the total, and $45 less than May's costs, while $12,011 was used to provide subsistence for 1,018 cases in Mansfield and $4,165 went to 362 cases in the township. About $716 was spent for surplus commodities division food and the sewing centers, Nist said.

The number of relief cases in both city and township dropped during June, with the city showing the greatest decrease. Nist said there were 1,069 city cases in May and 1,018 in June, while township cases dropped from 404 in May to 362 in June.

By action of the board of trustees, all township relief has been suspended during the month of July. Both city and township will have tax levy proposals on the August primary ballot to supply relief funds. The township asks a one-mill levy, and the city seeks two mills.

Finds Utility Has 30 Days Yet In Which To Appeal Gas Rates

The question of whether Mansfield is going to have to fight before the state utilities commission for the 65-cent gas rate ordinance it passed June 7 seemed a little beclouded today, a month after the measure had been approved by council, 8-1.

City Solicitor Marion D. Ward dug around in the statutes today and found that the Ohio Fuel Gas company had 60 days—instead of 30—in which to appeal from the provisions of the ordinance. Thus, it seemed that Aug. 7 will have to roll around on the calendar before the city can be sure whether the gas company will fight the rate, a renewal of the expired three-year contract.

The measure was passed June 7 as an emergency. That action was taken on Ward's recommendation, and the ordinance became effective as soon as the mayor signed it, which was the following day.

At that time it was believed the gas company had 30 days to accept it or appeal to the commission. Today, however, as the result of Ward's finding that the company had 60 days in which to act, city officials and council found they'd have to "hold their breath" another month.

E. M. Tharp, vice president and general manager of the Ohio Fuel company, said recently the company had not given "much thought" to the Mansfield situation.

SOCIAL CLUBS HOLD REGULAR MEETINGS

Members of Smaller Organizations Continue Sessions; One Group Entertains Families and Guests at Picnic Dinner.

ALTHOUGH the warm weather has led a number of organizations to dispense with regular meetings in favor of various outdoor affairs, a number of the social groups continue to gather at members' homes for games and cards at frequent intervals. All the members of the Golden Link club were present yesterday for the session at the home of Mrs. Henry Stickrod, Park avenue east.

The next meeting will be July 20 with Mrs. Anthony Normant as hostess.

The recently organized C. G. club met for the second time yesterday at the home of Miss Lyda May Hughes. Miss Laureine Fetter, president, was in charge of the business session. Luncheon was served at the close of the meeting and the next session will be Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Virginia Sanderson.

2 POSTAL VETS RETIRE FRIDAY

W. F. FitzSimmons and Frank Alger Served Total of 72 Years.

has been late for work only three times, and then due to sickness. Recently he figured up the miles that he has tramped over his route alone, not counting going to and from work, and the total was more than 120,000 miles almost five times the distance around the world at the equator.

"Postman's vacation" for him? Absolutely not. "I'm giving my feet a rest," he said today. "They've earned it. They're going on retirement."

FitzSimmons will spend some time at the Lake Erie beaches this summer in his auto trailer, but he's going to work—well, not so regularly nor so hard, but there's a definite program before him, mostly on his house and his yard.

"I've worked steadily for so many years that I can't quit now, all of a sudden. I'll have to take my rest in small doses until I can get used to it," he said today.

He was appointed a substitute mail carrier July 1, 1903, by Postmaster William G. Cappeller and given a regular place March 1, 1904. At that time, he recalls, there were but 14 mail routes in the city as compared with 30 now. After several years as carrier he was transferred to the office where he worked as a night clerk for 13 years. For the past 15 years he has been at the windows, and more recently at the stamp window at the west end of the lobby.

The two men will leave the office [illegible] arrow night at the end of the [illegible] work. Paul Oakes, from the substitute list, will take Alger's route, and Merz Pecht, a regular clerk, will replace FitzSimmons, Postmaster Herman E. Homberger said. Later in the summer two new substitutes, who pass the civil service examination, will be added to the staff.

TWO GET LIFE

Plead Guilty To Attempt To Rob Ohio Bank.

GALLIPOLIS—(AP)—Alva Sowards, 27, and Millard Davis, 21, were sentenced to life terms in Ohio penitentiary today by Common Plea Judge W. R. White, who told them "your career as small-time bandits has ended."

The men, arrested Sunday near Waverly after a 40-hour chase, pleaded guilty to attempting to rob a bank at Vinton June 27 and of beating G. W. Cooper during a hold-up at his store.

HERES STORY OF BARBARA HUTTON

The nickel and dime princess with the royal gold hair was born Nov. 14, 1912, in New York City. Her father, who has been devotedly at her side in all of her vicissitudes, was Franklyn Laws Hutton, a Wall Street broker associated with his brother in the firm of E. F. Hutton. Her mother was Edna Woolworth, daughter of Frank Woolworth, the founder, for whom the five and ten-cent store cash registers rang up $40,000,000 in nickels and dimes. Barbara's third of the estate actually increased to $45,000,000 by the time she was 21, due to the skillful management of her father.

Barbara knew at an early age the tragedy of violent death which was to visit her again later in life. When she was five years old, her mother was found dead on the floor of her suite at the Plaza hotel, a victim of a baffling ear ailment which caused suffocation. This occurred in May of 1917.

Loneliness Increased.

Her mother's death was one of the few realities that penetrated the silences of the ivory tower. It added to her loneliness, devoted to her though her father was always.

Money, though, can soften many blows.

Money, in fact, was not important to Barbara because it was so plentiful. No wonder, when she grew up, she bought whatever she wanted with it. A castle, a prince, a count, private railway cars, and once Ganna Walka's $1,200,000 collection of emeralds.

WARNS SMOKING CAUSES CANCER

Cleveland Researcher Says Pipe, Cigars, Cigarets Menace.

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—A warning that excessive smoking may lead to cancer was given by Dr. William H. Schultz of Cleveland today in a talk before the American Osteopathic Society of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology here.

He said excessive smoking may cause leucoplakia, chronic inflammation of the mouth and tongue, sometimes leading to cancer.

"An analysis of such injuries shows that pipe smoking is the chief peril," Dr. Schultz said. "Cigars are the next highest offenders, and cigarets the least dangerous."

3 States to Hear Call for 'Liberals.'

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Roosevelt will leave tonight on one of the biggest political jobs of his career—a stumping tour for "liberal" candidates.

In at least three states—Kentucky, Oklahoma and California—Mr. Roosevelt is expected to make it clear that he would like to have New Deal supporters sent back to the senate.

He also may take a crack at some of his congressional opponents, but there has been no definite word on this point.

The president's trip on a 10-car special train will find him in the role of leader of his party, fighting for what he terms "the liberal school of thought." Except for occasions when he himself has been a candidate, it will be his most extensive political journey.

While Mr. Roosevelt is enroute to California, Democratic Chairman James A. Farley will be heading for the northwest. A four to Alaska which Farley arranged several weeks ago as an escape from factional Democratic fights has turned into a speech-making trip that will rival in oratorical output the president's journey.

Speculation has developed here over the question of whether Farley would take opportunity to disclose his attitude toward efforts of some administration advisers to "purge" the Democratic party of anti-New Deal elements.

He may remain as discreetly silent on this topic as he has to date. When Farley gets ready to fight, well-informed persons say, it will be as a leader of Democrats against Republicans. Opportunity for that will come this fall when the primaries are over.

It has been reported authoritatively, however, that he has thrown in his lot with some of Mr. Roosevelt's associates in seeking to defeat such anti-administration senators at Tydings of Maryland, George of Georgia and Smith of South Carolina.

The president's journey will not be entirely political, however. In Fort Worth, Texas, he will spend next Sunday with his son, Elliott. In San Francisco, he will visit the 1939 exposition grounds and review the fleet.

Then, after a tour through Yosemite National park, he will board the U. S. S. Houston for a leisure-cruise to Panama. Thence he will sail to Pensacola, Fla., and return to Washington.

The month-long trip will add about 10,000 miles to the 124,000 miles of traveling which Mr. Roosevelt has done since he entered the White House in March, 1933.

DRIVING MENACE

Specialists Hear Autoists Are Developing 'Motor Ear.'

CINCINNATI—(INS)—Eye, ear, nose and throat specialists were told that American motorists are developing a "motor ear" caused by driving with the left window of automobiles lowered and exposing the member to steady and sometimes chilling breezes which cause catarrhal deafness.

Gathered in convention, the International Society of Osteopathic Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology heard Dr. A. C. Hardy, Kirksville, Mo., declare "not only is civilization causing an increase in deafness, it is doing much to hinder adequate treatment."

"Scientific development of sound equipment," he added, "such as the radio, which permits us to increase the volume at will, makes us less appreciative of beginning deafness."

FIRE AGAIN HITS TUCKER FARM

SHELBY—Barns are poor risks on the farm of Cyrus Tucker, four miles northwest of Shelby. Fires have destroyed four barns on the property in the last 12 years and a heavy windstorm wrecked another last year.

Yesterday a barn in which hay was stored burned to the ground, resulting in damages estimated at $1,500. The loss was partially covered by insurance. Thirty tons of hay were destroyed.

The fire was discovered at 1 p. m. and was believed to have started from a blower used in storing hay in the barn. The blaze was out of control when the Shelby fire department reached the scene.

LESS CONTAGION

June Report Shows Number of Cases Down 100 Per Cent.

Contagious diseases in Mansfield during June showed a decrease of more than 100 per cent in comparison with the previous month, the report of Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, showed today.

In all 80 cases were reported to the health department, with 41 being measles. The latter was less than one-third the number listed in May when 145 measle cases were reported.

The report also revealed nine cases of mumps in the city last month, seven cases of chickenpox, seven cases of scarlet fever and four cases of tuberculosis. There also was one case each of spinal meningitis, pneumonia and typhoid fever.

MORE FORESTS

Oregon, Washington to Get 2½ Million Trees.

PORTLAND, Ore.— (INS) —National forests of Oregon and Washington will be increased by more than two and a half million trees this year as the result of a gigantic planting program, according to Associate Regional Forester F H. Brundage.

Brundage said the trees would be spread over 4,000 acres in ten national forests throughout the two states and would include species of both pine and fir. The program will constitute the largest tree planting project in the histories of national forests in both states.

Baseball's Spectacle as Nationals Win

Part of the crowd of 30,000 baseball fans who jammed Crosley Field, Cincinnati, yesterday, to watch the favored American League All-Stars bow before the National league's chosen team, 4-1, is shown above. The Nationals were at bat wh en this shot was made.

Air-Tight Defense Wins Cincinnati All-Star Game for National League

Terry's Play-for-a-Run Baseball Defeats Rival Circuit's Mighty Sluggers, 4 to 1.

By GAYLE TALBOT

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The nation's several million National league addicts, who have taken an awful lot of lip from the opposition in recent years, were bouncing around on their toes today and telling anybody they could back into a corner about the merits of inside, scientific baseball.

They were pointing out, with gestures, how their all-stars whipped the pants off the best the American league could produce, 4 to 1, in the big charity bout here yesterday.

They were a changed people, the National leaguers, full of fire and taking nothing off of anybody and looking forward to the next one at the Yankee stadium in New York with undisguised relish.

Tonic for Game.

The National league victory was a fine elixir. Even if it didn't prove everything that the National leaguer says it did, including his theory that the senior circuit has a big pull both in pitching and defensive skill, it still was a tonic for the game.

Having lost four of the first five, the Nationals were about ready to toss in the towel. There was a last-ditch air about them as they went into yesterday's game.

They came out of it looking like men who had received a reprieve from the governor. President Ford Frick was bouncing around asking hostile sports writers "How do you like the minor leaguers now?" And even Col. William Terry, who engineered the triumph, didn't hide his elation. The players whooped it up in the club house.

There is nothing much more impressive in sports than a demonstration of the National league's type of tight, play-for-a-run baseball—when it works. And it worked yesterday. It was Bill Terry baseball, the kind that has been winning National league pennants, and for an afternoon at least, it was better than all the sluggers the American league could muster.

Terry sacrificed potential batting strength to put an air-tight defense behind his pitchers. The Nationals made eight hits, only one more than their adversaries. But they fielded perfectly, even brilliantly, while their opponents of the fat batting averages made four glaring errors and literally threw the game away.

Allows One Hit.

Johnny Vander Meer, Cincinnati's sensational young southpaw, held the Americans to a single hit for the first three innings. Bill Lee of the Chicago Cubs shut them out with one bingle, a fluke double by Bill Dickey, for the second three. Mace Brown of the Pirates repeatedly pulled himself out of danger and gave up only one run to the vaunted American leaguers in the final three.

Still, if the Americans had fielded like the winners, they would have finished the regulation nine innings in a 1-1 deadlock and might have been playing yet.

The highlight of the game, in fact, was a fielding gem by Joe Medwick of the St. Louis Cardinals in the ninth. Joe DiMaggio of the Yanks led off the inning with a single, and the National league adherents among the 27,000 shuddered as Dickey drove one at the scoreboard in deepest center. Carl Hubbell and Jim Turner were warming up furiously in the Nationals' bull-pen.

Medwick took one quick look and tore back at full speed. At the last instant he jumped and speared the ball, and it stuck in his glove as he somersaulted.

Joe Cronin, the next man up, doubled deep to center, his second hit of the day, to give the Americans their only run and avert what would have been the first shutout since the all-star games began. But that was all. Lou Gehrig lined out to Ival Goodman in right, and Brown closed the books by striking out Pinch-hitter Bob Johnson.

The Americans' only other serious threat came in the seventh, when they collected two hits and a walk off Brown to fill the sacks with two away. This time Rudy York, Detroit's home-run expert, was given his chance to break up the game, and he went down swinging at Brown's sharp-breaking curves.

Victimize Gomez.

Vernon "Lefty" Gomez of the Yankees, victor in three previous all-star games, had the misfortune of being charged with the defeat, though he allowed only two bingles in his three-inning tenure. Stanley Hack, lead-off man for the Nationals, greeted him with a clean single into left. His teammate on the Chicago Cubs, Billy Herman, then slapped a sharp grounder toward Joe Cronin, and with a double play in front of him the Boston Red Sox pilot let the ball shoot through his legs. Hack took third on the miscue and scored on Medwick's long fly to center.

What proved to be the winning run was scored off Johnny Allen, Cleveland speed-baller, in the fourth. Mel Ott of the Giants took a toe-hold and pumped one of Johnny's pitches against the right-field wall for a triple, the lustiest blow of the game. Whereupon big Ernie Lombardi of the Reds slapped the first of his two singles down the third-base line, and that was the ball game.

The last two National runs in the seventh were gifts, first Jimmy Foxx and then Joe DiMaggio throwing the ball out of sight. It finally wound up on the ground floor of the Nationals' dugout as Frank McCormick and Leo Durocher trotted across the pan.

Old Lefty Grove, the third American pitcher, deserved better than that. He struck out the next three men in order and hurled a scoreless eighth, though he was touched for a pair of hits.

The Athletics took undisputed possession of first place in the city recreation Intermediate baseball league at the Fairground yesterday when they defeated the Senators, 8 to 3. The defeat was the first of the season for the Senators, who were limited to five hits by Burton.

Williams obtained two of the eight hits secured by the Athletics, who scored five times in the first inning. Schneider hit a home run for the losers.

Legion Opens Second Half at Home Sunday

Mansfield Representatives to Engage Columbus Club In Inaugural on Home Field.

HOPING for a better break in weather, not to mention attendance, Manager Dewey Durant's American Legion semi-pro club will open its second half schedule of the Central Ohio league at the Fairground Sunday.

The Legionnaires' opponent will be the Federal Glass club of Columbus, which finished second to Newark in the first half race.

The Columbusites lost only two games during the first half, the same as the champions, but they won one less than Newark.

Sunday will mark the first appearance of the strong Columbus club at the Fairground. The Glassmen were scheduled here for one game in the first half, but rain forced a cancellation.

The Mansfield team finished fifth in the first half with three victories and five defeats, but Durant is confident that the Legionnaires will make a stronger bid for the championship in the race starting Sunday.

Durant's team was hindered by bad weather during the first half, and, consequently, got off to a bad start.

The Legion team is also the youngest in the circuit, and the experience it gained in the first half is expected to prepare it for a stiff fight in the forthcoming race.

Due to the poor attendance at the few games played here, the Legionnaires have been allotted only three home games in the second half.

Mansfield's road schedule will take the Legionnaires to Lancaster, Logan, New Philadelphia and Jackson, which has replaced Marion in the circuit.

Coshocton will appear at the Fairground Aug. 7, and Newark will come here two weeks later.

The official standings of the first half follows:

	W	L	Pct
Newark	6	2	750
Federal Glass	5	2	714
New Philadelphia	7	3	700
Coshocton	5	3	625
Mansfield	3	5	375
Jackson	3	5	375
Logan	2	7	222
Lancaster	1	5	167

FIRESTONE cuts the cost of Tire Safety just at the time when you need a new set of tires. At this time of the year you should replace tires that are worn and smooth for greatest safety during the summer driving season. Tires may look alike on the outside — but inside they are different. The name FIRESTONE on a tire is your assurance of extra safety and long mileage because only Firestone Tires are built with these patented and exclusive construction features:
Gum-Dipping, the Firestone patented process by which every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber, counteracts tire-destroying internal friction and heat which ordinarily cause blowouts. Nine extra pounds of rubber are added to every 100 pounds of cord.
Two Extra Layers of Gum-Dipped Cords under the tread, another patented Firestone construction feature, protect against punctures.
Scientifically-Designed Non-Skid Tread made of tough slow-wearing rubber, assures safer stops and longer non-skid mileage.
Now that Firestone gives you all of these safety and economy features at these low prices, you cannot afford to take chances with unsafe tires this summer. Come in today and join the Firestone Save-A-Life Campaign by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Convoy Tires—the safest tires that money can buy at these low prices.

MARKET BOOMS UNDER LEAD OF RAILROAD GROUP

Overnight News of Fare Hike Ignites Spectacular Buying Wave.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—The stock market started today with a booming uprush on the overnight news of the railroad fare rise but found the pace too fast to maintain.

After a quick advance of one to more than three points on a spectacular buying wave, the list ran into a rush to take profits. This cut the gains considerably and sent a number of leading issues under previous closing levels.

The high speed ticker was overwhelmed and was seven minutes behind at the peak. This forced the stock exchange to employ its "flash" system for floor prices for the third time since the current boom got under way on June 20.

Open With a Rush.

Railroad and other transportation shares opened spectcularly. Both New York Central and Greyhound started with 10,000 shares each at gains of more than a point; Pennsylvania jumped over 2 points, as did Union Pacific. Gains were cut substantially later.

Industries sensitive to the financial status of the railroads likewise advanced briskly. U. S. Steel set a fast pace for the steels and was up nearly 2 points but lost more than half later, Youngstown was a weak exception and down over a point.

Chemicals showed extreme variations. The Volatile Down Chemical ran up 7 points, and Allied 2. Union Carbide lost 2 points after being higher and duPont forfeited a 2-point rise.

Westinghouse was up over 3 but lost a large part of this later. Coppers and farm implements turned mixed.

'NOT THE MAN,' SAYS FREDERICK

am linked in any way to this case."

The prince, over the telephone from South Wales, said he was "very annoyed" that society gossips connected him with the sensational legal battle between the count and countess, in which the former accused Court of threatening to harm her and kill a "gentleman in London."

Putting a series of blunt questions straight to the prince, this correspondent asked him definitely to clear up once and for all circumstantial stories that he was in love with Barbara and planning to marry her.

Frederick voiced his denial to "these ridiculous reports" in almost perfect English, with only an occasional grammatical mistake.

"Your royal highness," I said, "I want to inform you most specifically that it is now being openly stated you are the 'gentleman in London' referred to in the Haugwitz-Reventlow case, and that you are the man who challenged the count to a duel."

"How can they say such things about me?" the prince's voice came over the 'phone in puzzled anger.

"I have nothing to do with them. It is only ridiculous talk; I hardly know the count and countess."

"But you have met the countess?" I pressed.

"That is true," Frederick agreed.

"But are you anything more than friends with her?"

"I am just a friend," the prince replied emphatically. "I only met the count and countess three or four times. Both of them were very kind to me. I have nothing against the count. He was very polite to me when I met him in Paris. But I hardly know him."

10 Die In Building Set Afire In Drill For Fire Fighters

LISBON, Portugal — (AP) — Ten boys died today when firemen failed to rescue them from a four-story wooden structure set ablaze to permit an exhibition fire drill.

Ten others were injured seriously in the drill at Coimbra, 100 miles north of Lisbon.

The building was soaked with gasoline for the spectacle with boys from 12 to 20 distributed through its rooms. The boys, some sons of firemen, were to receive ten escudos (45 cents) for their help.

The drilling brigade went to headquarters 400 yards from the building to await a prearranged alarm after the fire was started.

The flames spread too quickly. Thousands of spectators watched in terror as the firemen fought through the crowds to effect the planned rescue.

The crowd stampeded and some among them were injured. A volunteer brigade was formed to aid in carrying victims to the hospital.

JAPAN HUNTS FLOOD VICTIMS

Fear Death Toll From Torrent Might Reach 1,000.

TOKYO —(AP)— Flood waters that surged out of the hills surrounding Koke virtually disappeared today and the stricken western harbor city began clearing away the wreckage of its worst disaster.

Official figures put deaths at 303, with 1,200 injured and 429 missing. Fears were expressed that the death toll might reach 1,000.

Investigations were said to have shown that reservoirs remained intact, proving that the sudden torrent was the result of water collecting in the heights after a cloudburst Wednesday. Landslides previously had damned tons of water in the hills.

U. S. TO ALASKA HIGHWAY PLAN UP TO CANADA

British Columbia Divided on Proposed 1,200-Mile Route for Autos.

(By United Press)

VANCOUVER, B. C.—Considered an invaluable military lifeline by the United States, but recognized only as a "highway of romance" by Canada, the proposed international roadway to Alaska today is just $15,000,000 from completion.

With both governments admitting the tremendous military value of such a great north-south motor highway as a connecting link of the Pacific Coast, the Dominion would rather consider the project nothing more than a passageway into the interior of British Columbia—abundant in natural resources.

Feeling in British Columbia, through which province more than 1,000 miles of the roadway would pass, was that participation in the Pacific Coast program would eventually involve Canada in event of a United States-Japanese conflict.

Money Big Problem.

Financing of the vast international artery linking Seattle, Wash., with Fairbanks,, Alaska, today remains the sole outstanding obstacle to realization.

Dominion government spokesmen, never outwardly opposed to the program, have voiced little opposition to an American-financed artery through Canadian territory beyond stating that British Columbia, with an annual revenue of only $30,000,000, is in no position to finance its stretch of the proposed 1,200-mile route to Alaska.

Recent conversations between Premier T. D. Pattullo of British Columbia and Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes indicate negotiations for construction to be fairly well advanced. Pattullo remained reticent about progress of his discussions, while Ickes spoke favorably for the highway.

Launched as early as 1930 in British Columbia, the proposal at first gained both Conservative and Liberty support. Conservative backing fell away later, however, until today it stands as one of the strongest opponents of the roadway.

Attacked As "Extravagance."

Herbert Anscomb, Victoria Conservative, attacked Premier Pattullo's government for extravagance in considering "such a wild scheme."

"Such a far-fetched plot is entirely out of the realm of politics," Anscomb said. "The idea is nothing but a far-sighted military move by the U. S."

R. L. Maitland, King's Council, accused the Patullo administration of autocracy, and said the scheme was just another "dream of Pattullo's."

Liberals, however, always behind the project have been quick to rally to Pattullo's support.

Liberal speakers have kept the program alive in British Columbia. Public service clubs and other interests seeking to benefit by the tourist trade such a roadway would bring have supported the plan.

William Asselstine, provincial minister of mines and trade and industry, is a staunch advocate of the Alaska highway. Asselstine maintains more transportation facilities are required to open immense northern mining areas in the interior of the province.

It's Odd
But It's Science.

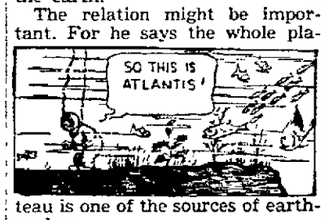
WASHINGTON—(AP)—Capt. N. H. Heck, one of America's foremost geologists, says there is a submerged plateau in the Atlantic ocean eleven-twelfths the area of the United States.

It lies about two miles below the surface of the sea, but from half a mile to a mile above the ocean floor. It is 100 to 700 miles wide. Its highest portions rise three to five miles above the ocean bottom.

This great plateau extends from around the latitude of south Greenland to that of Montevideo. It follows the middle of the North and South Atlantics in an unbroken line.

Captain Heck proposes methods of sounding and of earthquake studies that will better outline this great submerged land and show its relation to the rest of the earth.

The relation might be important. For he says the whole plateau is one of the sources of earthquakes.



The northern portion was found in 1854 during the surveys for the first Atlantic cable. Since the World war the German surveying ship Meteor has found the outlines of the southern areas.

This great ridge is the source of the mythical sunken continent, Atlantis.

LOSES GAMBLE

Policeman Dies Trying Out Russian Army Custom.

PEORIA, Ill.—(INS)—Patrolman Norman H. Lawler was dead today, victim of a reckless gamble with fate.

Detective Sergt. Fred Prim said that just before he was scheduled to report for duty, Lawler told his mother and a friend of a custom among army officers in czarist Russia.

They would place one cartridge in a six-shot pistol, twirl the cylinder, place the weapon to their head and pull the trigger. The odds would be six to one there was no explosion.

"I guess I'll see how my luck it," the policeman said to his mother.

"Don't do it, Norman," she said, "pistols weren't made to do tricks with."

The young patrolman, however, twirled the cylinder, placed the pistol to his head and pulled the trigger. There was an explosion and he toppled over dead.

Attending the services from Bucyrus were Mr. and Mrs. Amos Grogg and son, Daniel, Mrs. E. L. Crum, C. C. Crum and nephew, Jimmy.

MAPS HEARING

Senate Opens 'Little Steel' Strike Inquiry July 18.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The senate civil liberties committee will begin hearings July 18 in its investigation of citizens organizations and vigilante groups active during the "little steel" strike of last year.

Robert Wohlforth, committee secretary, said Tom Girdler, chairman of the board of Republic Steel Corporation, probably would be one of 100 or more witnesses called by the committee. Girdler refused to sign a contract with the CIO steel union.

The committee, which still has 15 investigators in the field, will draw a complete picture of the steel strike, Wohlforth said. The strike affected plants of four companies in several states, principally in Ohio.

The first contract for subways was awarded in 1900 in New York City.

BEES RAMAGE

Apiarists Blame Weather For Troublesome Year.

BRAZIL, Ind.—(INS)—Bees are irate in this region this summer and apiarists are trying to discover the reason. A number of bee raisers have appeared recently with faces swollen from stings and have reported more trouble than in any previous year. Some apiarists believe it is due to the extremely wet weather. They say the bees are angry because the water has interfered with their gathering of pollen.

AUTHOR WRITES SATIRE ON LIFE IN UNIVERSITIES

'These Bars of Flesh' Among Additions to Library's New Fiction List.

Thomas S. Stribling has undertaken to satirize American university life in his new novel, "These Bars of Flesh," which is on the new fiction list at the Mansfield Public library this week. A southern gentleman of the old school, Andrew S. Barnett, having won the office of county superintendent of schools in Atlee county, Ga., finds it necessary to obtain a college degree to fulfill the requirements which he himself had written into the state laws. His experiences in the university town during the summer session, with professors and students, make amusing reading.

"Fade Out" by Naomi Jacob centers around the character of Jane Pinto, film and stage star, and granddaughter of the indomitable Claudia of the preceding novel "Time Piece." Torn between the fascination which Alex Verschoff, her stepfather exercises over her, and her love for Martin Sharett, in whose play she appears, Jane manages to so tangle up the threads of her life that it takes Claudia to straighten them out.

"Forbidden Ground" by Neil H Swanson is a new novel illuminating another long forgotten corner of our history—Minnesota in the days of the American Revolution. Baril MacGregor's love for Merrily Groth blends with the exciting events of the rebellion, and makes another "Captain Blood" of the American frontier.

Other fiction is "Ace of Knaves" by Charteris; "Blind Drifts" by Clason; "Red Earth" by Gill; and "Marigold by Lutz.

A biography and two autobiographys are found on the nonfiction list this week. "Fanny Kemble: A Passionate Victorian" by Armstrong, is the biography of one of the most fascinating women of English history; the record of 70 years in a changing world is contained in "A Poet's Life," Harriett Monroe's own story in which her remarkable career is overlaid with a rare and dynamic personality and charm; "An Artist in America" is Thomas Hart Benton's autobiography in which he gives something of the thought and experiences that have shaped his own destiny as a painter.

"Time Past" by Mme. Marie Scheikevitch contains the author's memories of D'Annunzio, Reinach, Lord Balfour, Anatole France and other famous men of the century. In "Women of the Wilderness" Margaret Bell tells of the struggles and hardships which the pioneer women endured who came over on the Mayflower and settled in this country.

"Black Democracy" is Harold Palmer Davis' dramatic and tragic story of Haiti, from the time of its discovery by Columbus to the present time.

Non-fiction this week also includes: "Let Me Show You New Hampshire" by Ella Shannon Bowles; "Honesty" by Cabot; "These Foreigners," Seabrook; "And So To War," Herring, "Architects of Ideas. Great Theories of Mankind" by Trattner, "Guidebook to Historic Places in Western Pennsylvania" compiled by the Western Pennsylvania Historical society; "Popular Ballroom Dances," Parson; and "Fanny Kemble: A Passionate Victorian" by Armstrong

THEATER

NOW that the leads for "Gone With the Wind" are settled—or are they?—there is a dither in Hollywood over the casting of Louis Bromfield's "The Rains Came." Marlene Dietrich probably will be offered the role of Lady Esketh when the actress returns from Europe, and a happy choice it would be. Both Anita Louise and Phyllis Brooks have been mentioned for the role of Fern. It is pretty well set that Ronald Colman will play the disillusioned, discontented ex-patriated Englishman. Caesar Romero has indicated that, short of his left eye, he would give anything to play the native Indian doctor.

A New Hopalong.

A brand new Hopalong Cassidy adventure will be the two-day attraction at the Madison theater Friday and Saturday. "Bar 20 Justice," with the well known threesome of William Boyd, Russell Hayden and George Hayes, is the 19th of the Clarence Mulford stories about "Hoppy" to reach the screen. It pleasantly combines adventure and romance. The play revolves about the efforts of gold rustlers to wrest control of the region's richest mines from a young widow whose husband has been murdered. The widow happens to have been a former sweetheart of Boyd's so that taking up the cudgels for her is a pleasant task.

Plays Creole Beauty.

Louise Rainer plays a beautiful Creole in "The Toy Wife" current at the Ohio, one of the aristocrats of New Orleans who were a cross of Spanish and French blood. She is a heart-breaker with no thought outside of herself. If there is a moral in the picture it is that a woman selfish enough to ruin the lives of those whose paths cross hers, also destroys herself. In "The Toy Wife," Frou-Frou loses her husband, her home, her child, her father, her sister, and her lover because she thinks of no one but herself. However, the charm of Miss Rainer is compelling and the audience finds it easy to sypathize with so lovely and vivacious a sinner. Melvyn Douglas and Robert Young are starred with Rainer.

Cagney Returns.

James Cagney's last picture returns to Mansfield for a Friday and Saturday showing at the Majestic when "Something To Sing About" is shown there. In it the dynamic Cagney plays a song and dance man—which he was before coming into pictures—who goes to Hollywood under contract and takes a terrific kicking around by the producers, the star of the picture and the publicity department. Evelyn Daw plays opposite him as the singer with his band whom he marries and who gets kicked about a bit herself by the Hollywood system. William Frawley, as the publicity man who "fix" everything up, is a supporting player. The supplementary feature will be Jack Randall in "Land of Fighting Men."

Torchy Scoops 'Em.

One of the Torchy Blane pictures, "Blondes At Work," is offered at the Ritz tomorrow and Saturday. This is one of the series stories revolving around a newspaper girl, her romantic feud with a police lieutenant, and the "scoops" she manages to get with or without his aid. Glenda Farrell and Barton McLane are featured in the series. The first series, recently completed, proved so popular at the box office, that a second series will be produced with the same cast. Although the yarns are far-fetched and not exactly true to life, they provide screen thrills. In "Blondes At Work," the skirted journalist outwits the slightly dumb cop, solves a murder and fetches a scoop on all of the quickest male journalists in town. Another of the Three Mesquiteers stories is told in "Outlaws of Sonora."

HEART ON HER SLEEVE

CHAPTER XIII

The district attorney held out his hand.

"Fine job, Corrigan! I'm glad I found out the police department was on Farro's trail, or we might not have been able to clear this mess."

"Glad to oblige." Corrigan accepted Laine's proferred cigar with a grin. "Am I through now?"

Laine looked at his watch.

"Better get some lunch and come back this afternoon. I want to bring Farro in, and I might be needing you."

"Okay!" said Corrigan, and went out.

* * *

Moleen looked bewildered. Mignon turned to her father happily.

"Now, you old bear, maybe you'll take my judgment of people a little more seriously after this!"

"I'm glad," Laine admitted, "this girl is not involved with the Farro gang. But this still doesn't excuse her for not being above board with us, and for not having the courage to tell us she has a convict in the family."

Moleen's chin quivered.

"I—hate myself for it, Mr. Laine. Much more than you could despise me."

"Don't scold her any more now, Dad." Mignon put her hand on his arm. "Let me take her home for a rest now. And if you want to talk with her later——"

"No," Laine said shortly. "I can't consent to letting Miss O'Dare go back with you. She'll have to go to a hotel or some place. I can't have the newspapers learn we're harboring her"

Mignon paled

"I—I think you're very hard, father."

Moleen said quickly, "Oh, no! Your father is right. I can't go back now. You—mustn't worry about it. I—I'll be all right."

"Won't you change your mind, Dad? No one need know."

"I can't take a chance." Laine was firm. "I don't want you to be seen with Miss O'Dare. Not now, anyway."

Moleen smiled courageously.

"I—feel so much better since learning that Detective Corrigan heard me talking with Charlie Farro and you know I was telling you the truth about him"

* * *

The district attorney said grimly, "I don't suppose you'll ever realize how lucky you are that the police department had a man trailing Farro, and that he was behind that tree outside the Wayside Inn. I'm afraid I might never have believed you. The circumstantial evidence was too damning"

"If—there were only something I could do to help" Moleen twisted her hands "Some way I could make up for being such a coward."

Laine studied the girl shrewdly.

"Just how far would you go to help clear up this Farro business?"

"I'd—die." Moleen replied tensely. "Now I know why Pat was so afraid of Charlie. He must have known Farro was at the head of those counterfeiters, and so was afraid to talk. I always felt that if Pat had talked he could have cleared himself."

* * *

The district attorney stroked his chin.

"You do have a pretty good reason for wanting to get revenge against Farro, don't you?"

"I despise him!" Moleen's large blue eyes narrowed. "For what I'm sure he has done to my brother, and for what he tried to do to Mignon."

"What was that?" Laine snapped.

Mignon hesitated.

"He—tried to get me to—elope with him. It's all very clear now. He thought if he were married to me, you would let him off easy if he got caught."

Tom Laine swore

Moleen," he said suddenly, "I'm going to give you a chance to prove your sincerity and your courage. If you can put it over, you will have wiped the slate clean so far as I'm concerned. I'll withdraw my objections to anything Mignon might wish to do for you."

"You—mean," Mignon threw her arms around his neck, "you'll let her come back to live with me."

Laine half smiled.

"If my plan works."

Moleen said whitely, "Just tell me. No matter what it is, I'll do it."

* * *

The district attorney sat down nervously. Moleen and Mignon sank down on the bench and watched him tautly while he drummed on the table.

In a little while he looked up.

"I don't believe there's any real danger in it for you," he said uncertainly. "But it's going to take a lot of courage, and some good acting. First. I want you to register at the Hotel Sandling. We'll plant a dictograph in the room.

"Then, I want you to telephone Farro and tell him you've been thrown out of our house because I suspect you are connected with him. Tell him I recognized him when he was Mignon's guest at dinner, and am wise to the fact that he's the brains of the Rafetti gang."

Moleen watched him with enormous eyes.

"I—understand. Yes, I'll do it!"

"Tell him I'm not going to do anything to you because I don't want to embarrass Mignon. Say I'm afraid the newspapers would involve her. Sell him on the idea you are trying to tip him off.

"Then tell him there is something else he should know, but that you're afraid to tell him on the phone—that you're afraid some one might be listening in, even though you do feel pretty certain no one knows where you are.

"I want to get him into that room with the dictagraph He has a bunch of powerful politicians behind him. When I crack this case I want to hang Farro with his own words. You must try to get him to admit his connections with Rafetti."

"I'll do my best," Moleen nodded. "Then what?"

"We'll just have to trust to luck." Tom Laine got up. "And to your ability to put the right questions to him."

"Oh, Molly," Mignon shivered, "please be careful! I hate to see you do it."

"I'm — glad," Moleen smiled, "and I'm not afraid. Not a bit."

Laine looked down at her quizzically, his face softening.

"I've had to be pretty tough with you, youngster But it's all in my business. I was going to save this for later. But I think I'll tell you now and maybe it'll help to give you courage We have every reason to believe that your brother Pat is innocent. Your theory that he could have talked, but wouldn't, is correct."

Moleen swayed. Mignon steadied her.

"You—mean, oh, Mr. Laine, are you sure?"

The district attorney smiled.

"Corrigan tipped me off to this, too. He picked it up from a stool pigeon a couple of days ago. Pat O'Dare was witness to a shooting of one of the high-ups in another gang by one of the Rafetti gang. Charlie Farro gave him a job in a poolroom for a week and to trap him paid him off in counterfeit. Pat was told you and your mother would both be bumped off if he talked. With the counterfeit rap against him, he was too scared to disobey."

* * *

Moleen gave way to tears It was a great relief to cry. When they had quieted her. Mignon begged her father to allow Sunny to come in just for a little while He was waiting with Jed in the car around the corner.

Moleen dried her eyes "Oh, Mignon, he'll hate me now! After what I've done! And I'm such a mess!"

Mignon wheedled, "Run along, Dad. Just for—ten minutes."

WAITS WORD ON SCHOOL BONDS

Board Needs Approval of Tax Commission to Put Proposed $550,000 Issue on Ballot.

With the primary election little more than a month away, the Mansfield board of education today still awaited authority to submit its proposed $550,000 bond issue to voters at the Aug. 9 election.

Submitted to the state tax commission more than three weeks ago, the board's application for authority to submit the proposal was returned for corrections, Dr J. H Bristor, clerk of the board, said.

A second application has brought no response from the tax commission, but Bristor held hope that the authorization would be granted this week.

If the approval is received, the county board of elections will be asked to order ballots for the election.

The $550,000 sought by the board would supplement an anticipated $450,000 PWA grant for the construction of two Junior high school buildings and improvements to present buildings.

"Runaway Balboa" is an unusual and amusing story for the in-between age. Enid Johnson wrote the story and Anne Merriman Peck did the colorful illustrations.

"Balboa" was a shiny, new, engine, called a mule. His job (Oh yes, he worked!) was to help pull ships through the Panama canal. At first he liked his work immensely, but after a while, he got bored. Papa Pelican told him such marvelous tales of what the wide, wide, world was like, that he decided to run away and see for himself. This is the story of his adventures in the jungle Up to this time, Balboa had eaten nothing but electricity, but now he decided to sample some real food. He started with bananas, went on to cocoanuts, bread-fruit, and papayas, and ended up with a good old-fashioned stomach-ache.

THURSDAY, JULY 7, 1938.

In all probability nobody thought to wish the government a happy new fiscal year.

Barbara Hutton is referred to as the girl who "has everything"—which doesn't seem to be very much, after all.

Reports are to the effect that orders for 1939 calendars are already being placed—and as there's to be a next year we might as well be getting ready for it.

High Wages, Low Prices.

AN INTERESTING and important test of an economic principle is now under way in the steel industry. Manufacturers, while making considerable reductions in the price of steel, are refraining from corresponding wage cuts. Formerly, in times comparable to the present business slump, wages would have been lowered as a matter of course, along with the prices for steel products. The old economics held that to be unavoidable.

The present attitude, in line with what may be called the new economics urged by many leaders of government and business, holds that prosperity requires high wages, for creation of buying power among the masses of workers and consumers. High wages are regarded as necessary not merely to maintain a high level of prosperity once established, but as a means of restoring lost prosperity.

A good deal depends on how the public in general responds to this policy. If enough people buy enough steel quickly, presumably the new combination of high wages and low prices will be justified. On that basis we might push ahead into big prosperity, realizing an "economy of plenty" instead of the "economy of scarcity" in which we have floundered.

If it can be done in steel it can quite likely be done in other industries.

If this important experiment is to succeed, the public will have to co-operate by buying freely and promptly.

Closing Ordinance Revision Sought.

APPEAL of night club operators for a revision of Mansfield's city ordinance, to allow later closing time for D-3A and D-5 permit holders, comes as something of a surprise, it having been assumed that the unanimous action of council a few months ago in refusing to amend the closing ordinance would be regarded as final.

The present ordinance, passed more than three years ago but not enforced until last December, provides for 1 a. m. closing on week days and midnight closing on Saturday.

Present request is for a revision of the ordinance to allow night clubs to remain open until 1:30 a. m., thus extending the time one half hour on week days and an hour and a half into Sunday morning.

When the matter of closing hours for liquor dispensaries was being previously considered, expression of opposition was accompanied by the suggestion that midnight, rather than 1 a. m., might be a more appropriate closing time for all nights in the week, instead of only on Saturday nights.

If the subject is to be re-opened for further consideration by council it is not unlikely that this point will again be raised by those who believe that the sale-by-the-drink liquor business has fast been getting out of reasonable bounds.

Good Man on Racing Commission.

REAPPOINTMENT of George H. Blecker, Mansfield attorney, to the state racing commission for another four-year term is deserved recognition of the painstaking and conscientious work that Mr. Blecker has done on this commission during the five years since it was established.

As member of the commission during its first year, and as chairman for the past four years, it has been Mr. Blecker's consistent effort to elevate the standards of horse racing in this state and to guard against improper practices which have, from time to time, stigmatized this sport in other states.

A native of Mansfield and graduate of the local high school, Mr. Blecker inherits from his father, the late Ernest A. Blecker, a keen interest in horse racing which stands him in good stead in a position such as this. His father and an uncle after whom he was named, were for many years breeders and dealers in thoroughbred horses.

Having served two terms as Richland county prosecuting attorney, Mr. Blecker's wide acquaintanceship in this city and county has become extended in recent years to racing circles in Ohio and other states. His continuance on the state racing commission will serve to retain confidence in the proper functioning of that commission in supervising its branch of sports.

Recreation and Education Gain.

TWO modern developments in American life seem to follow opposite lines but may be really complementary.

One is recreation. Americans play more than they used to. There is more swimming, golf, tennis, hiking, boating, and so on every year. People travel more during short vacations—and there are more people having paid vacations than formerly. Even those who do not go away from home seem to get outdoors more. Many public parks nowadays are equipped with fireplaces for cooking which are in use by picnicking families every day in the week, and for breakfasts almost as much as for dinners.

The other contemporary trend is education. People are seriously concerned about many things and they use much of their leisure time to seek expert guidance in their thinking about them. The list is long of institutes on current affairs and many different subjects which are held for a week, two weeks, or a month here and there throughout the country every summer. People attend these gatherings and do the suggested reading.

It seems to be true that a more balanced life is approaching in this country, with recreation and culture developing together.

Having in mind that those honorary degrees were conferred on Walt Disney instead of Mickey Mouse, it may be well for Charlie McCarthy to be on his guard.

The Duke and Wally are enjoying a "holiday" on the Riviera—possibly having been all tired out by preceding holidays.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

EVIDENTLY the senate civil liberties committee—which means Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin and Senator Elbert D Thomas of Utah—will be the busiest of all special senate committees for the remainder of the year.

Local administrative officials have taken it upon themselves to establish a fascism and a reign of terror all their own.

First, there was Jersey City. Now, there is New Orleans. And there are many other places not so well publicized.

In New Orleans, CIO men were deprived of all rights (according to their reports to Washington) and some were beaten by police and police-inspired hoodlums prior to being "deported."

It is a queer commentary (which evidently causes the dictators abroad to say, "We told you so!") that the very processes of government which ought to protect civil rights, destroy them. One cannot expect much from mayors, as they usually get into power through a joint alliance of corrupt wealth and gamblers, but a city council and a state legislature ought to be fairly representative of the people at large. Yet they, too, are in the hands of machines, and become engines of oppression under the guise of democracy.

Even congress, if left unchecked by the few brave spirits who dare speak the truth, would nullify the rights of the people while shouting, "We're protecting liberty," then murmuring in an undertone that old stock phrase, "But liberty is not license."

Thus the La Follettes, the Thomases, the Norrises, the Roosevelts stand guard—merely a corporal's guard, it is true, but enough, perhaps, to stem the onrushing tide of American-born fascism. President Roosevelt still is looked upon by the majority of Americans as their leading defender and often their sole hope against fascism.

* * *

LA GUARDIA

Again and again this column is asked, "Will Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York win the nomination for president?"

I do not know. I doubt whether anybody can make even a guess.

La Guardia is one man who did whip the combination of corrupt wealth and politics, one man who did lick a powerful political machine, a potent engine of fascism. And the second time he licked it he had a formidable labor following in the American Labor party.

But a city—even one as large as New York—and a nation are quite different.

How would La Guardia appeal to the mid-northwest, to the immediate midwest, to the south, to the far west, to New England? He has made many appearances in various parts of the country. He has been favorably received. His rugged honesty is liked. His business-like administration in New York is approved. But he looks foreign. (Oh, that such things should count!) Yet Napoleon was a foreigner to France at first. And the little Corsican seemed a strange figure. Yet, La Guardia goes forth under a handicap.

Minus that handicap, he would be a leading contender. But can anyone tell what ticket? He is a pro-Rooseveltian, but he is not a Democrat. And though the Republicans did nominate him in New York, they are scared to death of him nationally. Yet, if they were sure they would win with him, they would take him. A starving man never turns away from a chance at the banquet table.

As for the Democrats—imagine the southerners and the Old Guard accepting La Guardia! The very mention of his name causes a stroke of apoplexy. Roosevelt was enough. This fellow is double!

Then again, Roosevelt may control the Democratic convention. But not enough to put any La Guardia across.

Timely Editorial

Fun and Tragedy.

The deaths of Medill McCormick and his young friend who lost their lives in a mountain climbing holiday calls attention again to the dangers of the vacation season. Incongruously enough summer is a time of mixed pleasure and tragedy. More often in July than in any other months does death strike in the midst of pleasure—on the highways, in the lakes and rivers, in the air, in the woods, at the vacation resorts and all places where people go for fun and relaxation.

Many are the dangers which beset human beings. Eternal vigilance is the price of safety and life. With the vacation season in full swing long distance touring, picnic eating, boating, tramping and all the other outdoor pleasures which attract men, women and children make a double need for caution and care. Nothing seems so tragic as life lost in the pursuit of pleasure Death and vacation would not seem to go together, but too often they do.—Columbus Dispatch.

TIME FOR A HELPING HAND

Snell and Watson, Last of Type

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Even a New Deal sympathizer, if a veteran in Washington, is entitled to feel a certain sort of sentimental pang at Representative Bertrand H. Snell's announcement of his retirement from congress simultaneously with James E. Watson's defeat for another nomination as a senatorial candidate in Indiana.

As Republican Old Guardsmen it is unimaginable that Capitol Hill ever again will see that pair's equals.

Each was a perfect specimen of the G. O. P. Old Guard species.

And it is a sad thing to see the last two samples of an already almost extinct race vanishing into complete oblivion.

* * *

WATSON'S END

"Jim" Watson's case is the more tragic of the two.

As for "Hard-Boiled Bert," as he was known, he quits because he feels like it. I have no doubt that his up-state New York district would have sent him again to the capital if he had remained in the running. At nearly 68, however, he was tired of public life, and dropped out of it voluntarily.

Former Senator Watson, however, was beaten for re-election in 1932. After a six-year lapse, now, he has been defeated, at nearly 74, for his own party's senatorial nomination. That ends "Jim" Watson.

* * *

WAS A POWER

Watson was a power in Washington for a generation.

He came here as a representative in 1895, rose to the rating of majority "whip of the house," was promoted to the senate 22 years ago, became his party's leader in the upper congressional chamber, was majority leader for a long time; then minority leader after the Democrats gained control, but not such overwhelming control as present.

He always was a capable leader. Liberals, to be sure, regarded him as an arch-conservative. Nevertheless, they liked him. He was as lovable a character as ever occupied a senate seat. And technically, for his era, he was an exceedingly clever politician.

The New Deal sweep of 1932 eliminated him — temporarily, as he hoped.

It proves to have been permanent—as the recent Indiana primary results indicated.

* * *

SYMPATHY UNNEEDED

"Hard-Boiled Bert" doesn't deserve so much sympathy. Or maybe, I should say, he doesn't need so much.

"Bert" for years has been Republican leader in the house of representatives, as Watson was in the senate. In earlier days, when "Bert's" side was in a representatorial majority, "Bert" wasn't so considerate of the minority as Watson was in the senate.

"Bert" has been frightfully anti-New Dealerish.

No one sympathizes with "Bert."

He is not exactly licked. He has kept up a creditable rear-guard action to the present juncture.

"Jim's" own forces have deserted him.

Health Advice

Fewer Ills of Summer Nowadays.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

AS SHORT a time ago as the beginning of this century, from 1901 to 1905, the death rate among infants began to rise sharply with the beginning of June, and by the middle of July it had reached the highest peak of the year. It was five times as great as the other high peak in March. It began to decline in August, and by September had reached a mean level.

In 1931-1935, the death rate among infants was lower during June, July, August and September than at any other period in the year.

The difference is due to the disappearance of infantile diarrhea. This is due to sanitary milk and water supply. But it is astonishing that the improvement has occurred since such a short time ago. In 1901 the fact that infantile dysentery was due to germs transmitted in milk was well known. So, too, was the means of producing and distributing clean milk. The improvement that has occurred in 30 years is a matter of organization and persistent effort.

Must Be Kept Up.

That effort must be kept up if our present high standard of infant health in the summer is to be maintained. The germs are not destroyed, and the ancient plague will break out again with all its virulence at the slightest slip in vigilance. Our public health service knows this and devotes most of its time these days to this problem.

How can milk be safeguarded to prevent it from transmitting disease?

Those who are likely to read this paper do not constitute the heart of the problem: they are at an economic level where they can obtain certified milk, evaporated milk or pasteurized milk from a clean dairy. And they are on a level of intelligence such that they know what the health requirements of a milk supply for their family are and will insist that those requirements be met.

The real problem is in the thriving dens of those too poor and too ignorant to insist on clean milk. Here the public health department does its effective supervision. Boiled milk is the ideal answer. In many parts of Europe and South America, where they boil the milk, they have practically no milk-borne disease. But here we cannot depend on enough people boiling the milk to prevent epidemics. The answer seems to be pasteurized milk, properly inspected and supervised.

Listen, World!

I Will Build Me a Nest.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

IF ONLY YOU WERE SURE OF SOMETHING! Day after day, you drag yourself through the daily round . . . doing the same old chores . . . making the same old gestures . . . mouthing the same old words.

Night after night, you go on with the squirrel cage routine, whether you're man or woman. Leave the office . . . take the 5:15 home. Set the table . . . turn on the radio. Pick up the evening paper . . . wash the little tad's grubby hands. Sit with the rest of the family, around the evening meal. Ride, with the rest of the family, to the evening movie. And, outwardly, all seems well. Outwardly, you seem safe and serene, settled and prosperous . . .

But, inwardly, you're anything but! Inwardly you're bewildered, lonely, discouraged . . . reaching out constantly for something to cling to, SOMETHING YOU CAN BE SURE OF. And you think wistfully of your father's world . . . of its simplicity and security. If only you could live like that!

But nothing in this modern life is secure. Daily it changes. Daily its awful speed and pressure increase. Where are you headed? You don't know. Is it all worth while? You don't know that, either. You are only sure of one thing—the mounting terror within yourself—the growing sense of your own inability to cope with it all.

And sometimes everything seems to dissolve in a nightmare. A nightmare in which you stumble, alone and blind, through a black bedlam . . . a quaking soul in a quaking nothingness . . . searching desperately for something, something in which to believe, on which to rest.

Not long ago there lived in the South a frail, penniless college professor . . . slowly dying . . . also beset by that same nightmare of insecurity . . . that same heart-broken groping for a haven before the end would come—

Very near seemed that end. Each day hemorrhages racked him, drained him. Lying exhausted, his tortured eyes looked out over the marshes he had loved—the far reaching, shadowy marshes of Glynn, where the salt tides crawled, clucking and whispering, between the quivering grass roots and the gnarled, moss-hung trunks of the ancient trees. And it seemed to him that his own life was like that endless, quaking marsh — swept by the cruel tides of uncertainty—without any place where the soul might root or rest.

Yet, even as he looked, a marsh hen rose and hovered above her nest—a nest that rode, safe and serene, above the restless tides, despite the swooping storms. And he saw that truth for which he had searched for long . . . that there was a haven for the weary soul . . . a haven which neither pain nor terror nor our mortal confusion could ever shake.

Through eyes already glazing in death, Sidney Lanier saw, at last, the deathless truth . . . and his heart sang. And out of that singing came one of the noblest poems ever written—"The Marshes of Glynn."

Are you, too, weary to death . . . sick and shuddering from your futile search for peace? Then this one verse of Sidney Lanier's poem may heal your sickness—

"As the marsh-hen secretly builds on the watery sod,
"Behold I will build me a nest on the greatness of God;
"I will fly in the greatness of God as the marsh-hen flies
"In the freedom that fills all the space 'twixt the marsh and the skies.
"By so many roots as the marsh-grass sends in the sod
"I will heartily lay me a-hold on the greatness of God."

"The greatness of God." How many driven spirits have found shelter there when everything else had failed? Wealth and fame, pleasure and power—one by one they slip from our desperate grip; near and nearer creep the grim gray tides. Then, suddenly, we feel God's certainty . . . and, like lost children, cease our strife . . . and rest.

ALL of US

—By MARSHALL MASLIN

What Do You DO?

THERE'S AN old saying that survives because of the weakness and self-pity in the human heart. . . . because man so often is unwilling to take the fault of his own failures upon his own shoulders . . . and loath to say: "Yes, I did it—yes, I made a mistake!"

That saying is this: "It's not what you do, but what you are, that counts in this world."

It's the sort of thing that people say in defeat, and when I hear it from my own lips or from any other individual, I seem to hear every feeble rebel, every foolish fellow, every inadequate apologist for defeat weeping into his own breast and crying that it's not what he had done but what he has been that counts in living.

But it's not true!

What we are, stands still. What we do, moves. What we are is a picture on the wall. What we do is the effect of that picture on the wall. What we do is the effect of that picture on those who see it. . . . What we are sits in a corner by itself. What we do, moves through the crowd and weaves a pattern of challenging example. What we are may reach vainly for a star, but what we do holds that star in our hands and holds it aloft.

You may strive and fail. Men will see you striving. They will view your failure. They will hear you whine. They will hear you cry. "It's not what I did, but what I am that makes up the full sum of me!" But they will not believe you because they know better. In their hearts they will know that your striving was the better part of you, that even your failure was more important than your melancholy self-consolation.

And so, if you strive and succeed men will see your victory and pay little attention to what you are. You have done something and though they may damn your deed, they will know that for better or for worse you achieved something and are a force.

I am not praising action for the sake of action. I am praising it because I know, as every other man knows, that stumbling, faltering, valiant endeaver is nobler than inert and immobile goodness, however fair, however sweet to contemplate.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

To Have the "Blues."

Low spirits, melancholia, despondency—these are an old story, as old as human and perhaps even animal life.

Old enough also—several centuries—is the characterization for such a gloomy state as the "blues," which our great-grandparents called "blue devils."

That the word "blue" should be used here is natural; for it is as the application of a physical condition to its mental counterpart that we have the term in its figurative significance.

Blue is the name of the livid, leaden color of the skin of a person suffering from exposure to severe cold, lowered vitality, great fear or alarm.

The feeling, of course, is depressing, dismal, dreary. We hope out explanation for the nomenclature isn't.

A "Close-up" of Gettysburg.

Editor News-Journal:

I have been reading the articles regarding the Battle of Gettysburg and they give us a pretty good idea of the preliminary movements of both armies a few days before the battle.

In the late nineties I was a telegraph operator at the east end of Crestline yards for the Pennsylvania railroad.

The switchman at that end of the yard was a veteran of the Civil war named John Cook, now deceased. Two sons, Charles and Philip Cook are engineers on the Pennsylvania.

John participated in the Battle of Gettysburg all three days, and often, when things were quiet, he would tell me about the great fight.

He was in Milroy's division of Hancock's corps. This division had a desperate fight with Stonewall Jackson at Winchester a few days before the Battle of Chancellorsville, where Jackson was killed. The division had orders to march as rapidly as possible and reinforce Meade. John said, "we got to Gettysburg on the evening of July 1 and the next morning the battle opened.

John took part in repulsing Pickett's charge on the last day. He saw the southerners coming across the open field and so heavy was the Union fire that only a remnant of the chargers reached the Union line. He saw Carl Schurz, Hancock, and Meade during the battle.

Speaking of the criticism of Meade for not following right after Lee, he said, "we were so exhausted that we fell on our faces on the ground and went to sleep after three days' fighting under the hot sun." Meade could not follow immediately.

GRAND JURY TO INVESTIGATE 3 TRAFFIC DEATHS

Prosecutor Sets Session of Panel for Next Week; 2 Drivers Held.

The Richland county grand jury will be called Wednesday to investigate three traffic accidents in which three persons were killed in the Mansfield area in the past month, County Prosecutor Glenn W Marriott said today.

One driver involved in the crashes is being held under charges, but a second is in the county jail pending outcome of the investigation. After questioning a number of witnesses in two accidents west of Mansfield last weekend, Marriott said he would ask the grand jury to determine responsibility for the fatal crashes.

At the same time the jury will hear four other cases, involving charges of cutting with intent to wound, pointing firearms, breaking and entering and issuing bad checks.

Hear Crash Evidence.

The jurors will consider evidence in two crashes on route 30 between Mansfield and Crestline in which Mrs. Wilbur Wilson, 24, Mansfield, and William Greifenstein, 66, of Ontario were fatally hurt, and manslaughter charges against Richard Strohminger, 19, Mansfield, who figured in another accident June 11 on Lexington avenue.

Aubrey Wilson, 27, of Indianapolis, Ind., driver of the truck in which Mrs. Wilson was killed, is in county jail, but no charges have been filed against him. Wilson told officers he went to sleep and lost control of the truck, which hit a tree three miles east of Crestline at 5:30 a. m. Monday, fatally injuring Mrs. Wilson.

Clyde Bowerstock, 21, R. D. 2, Ashland, driver of a car which struck Greifenstein as he walked across route 30 at Ontario Saturday night, was questioned by officers and permitted to return to his home.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

World's Tonic Gives Her Best Health Ever

Bowels Now Regular, Nervousness Quieted, Dizzy Spells Gone

World's Tonic Just What Mrs. Rowe Had Needed for Years

"WORLD'S TONIC took less than a month to prove its merits in my case," says Mrs. Elda Rowe of 932 13th St., Massillon, Ohio. "Dizzy bilious attacks made me stumble and I'd have to sit down. I was sure I had high blood pressure or heart trouble. Headaches made me nervous and cross and an awful gassy, puffy feeling in my stomach was misery. At these times I couldn't walk upstairs for want of breath. But worst of all was the trouble with kidneys. Every night I'd get up three or four times, no sleep, just catnaps and in the mornings I'd feel stiff and sore as if someone had beaten me with a club. Always tired, weary and blue and just generally wearing out and going to pieces. I never dreamed that constipation was really the cause of my troubles. But now, thanks to WORLD'S TONIC, I feel like a different person.

"It is almost unbelievable how quickly the relief from constipation started me to general good health. My entire person has been greatly benefited by WORLD'S TONIC. Stomach, kidneys and bowels now regulate easily and are in splendid condition. The dizzy spells are gone and I can walk upstairs now without fear. It's wonderful to be able to eat and sleep good again and enjoy life like a human being. WORLD'S TONIC is truly a medicine of outstanding merit."

A few doses of WORLD'S TONIC may convince you that it is the medicine you too are looking for.

PHONE REFUND BACK IN COURT

State Court Admits Appeal Fighting Ohio Bell on $7,225,000 Rebate.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — The 14-year-old Bell telephone refund case was back in the courts again today after the state supreme court decided to hear an appeal from the utilities commission ruling of May 26 setting the amount due subscribers in overcharges at $7,225,000.

Earl Harrison, Cleveland labor leader, and four associates appealed the decision after the commission refused to allow them to intervene and reopen the case which had been fought to the U. S. supreme court and back again.

At the same time the high tribunal refused to order the commission to set aside its order and redecide the case on the 86,000 pages of evidence.

The ruling ordering the refunds in 44 cities where the Bell company operates exchanges was handed down after attorney for the company and Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy agreed on procedure to be followed in reaching a decision.

Harrison and his associates challenged the commission's ruling and contended that the $7,225,000 refund total was an arbitrary figure reached without regard of the evidence. In the petition, Harrison declared that had the mandate of the U. S. supreme court, to which the case was carried once, been followed, the refund would have totaled approximately $20,000,000.

EXPERIMENTAL SCHOOL GRADS CRITICIZE AND PRAISE PLAN

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—A written criticism on progressive education by the 55 members of this year's graduating class of University high school, model experimental institution on the Ohio State University campus, was published today.

In a book entitled, "Were We Guinea Pigs?" the class found certain defects and many advantages in the system of education that permits the student to plan his study courses and that recognizes no conventional grading of ability. The book was published in lieu of a class year-book.

The students criticized language courses, which they thought were not well organized. They doubted the value of algebra and geometry because there is little use for them later, so they discussed higher mathematics and decided "while we are learning to do this, we were learning a very definite method of thought."

They praised their "model" education on the grounds that it taught them to help themselves and made them capable of independent and impartial thinking. They admitted mistakes in planning some courses

They did not take tests and get grades as students in other schools. On this phase they reported

"An important advantage of our program is that individual differences can be taken into consideration. In order to do this, grades seem inadequate because the difference between an 'A' and a 'B' does not reveal sufficiently the difference between the minds of two people.

"We do not believe a student's intelligence can be determined accurately enough by a test, since too many variables such as emotional stress, misunderstanding and health must be considered."

Paulette and Charlie Make Up, Reno Trip's Off.

DEL MONTE, Cal. — (U.P.) — Whatever differences there may have been between Charlie Chaplin and Paulette Goddard have been settled and all is sweetness and light again in the Chaplin domestic establishment, it was reported today As a result, Miss Goddard probably will forsake her planned trip to Reno "to open a ski club."

Coincident with the reported reconciliation, Miss Goddard for the first time tentatively acknowledged that she was Chaplain's wife, though it has been understood generally that they were married several years ago. She entered the Cypress Point golf tournament here as "Mrs. Charlie Chaplin." Place cards at various social functions which she has attended have distinguished her as "Mrs. Chaplin."

Debs Curtsey In Peek-A-Boo Gowns, Court In Dither

LONDON—(AP)—Low-tide necklines and daring bodice effects at King George's third court gave the new lord chamberlain something else to worry about today besides walking backwards gracefully.

Eyebrows went up like elevators last night at Buckingham palace as debutantes curtseyed prettily in gowns plainly cut more decolette that unofficial court practice prescribes.

As a result, gossips predicted the Earl of Clarendon, the lord chamberlain, would "take steps" to see to it that dresses hereafter are not quite so peek-a-boo

HONEYMOONERS

JACK and Polly are on their honeymoon. And all our hearts go with them.

They had a pretty home wedding. Polly wore the orange blossoms with the proud youthful dignity befitting a girl whom a man has chosen to be his wife and carry his name.

Jack did very well. He was a little nervous of course, as any bridegroom worth his salt is bound to be.

They went away amid blessings and good wishes, hilarity and tears, rice and old shoes.

The house seemed empty after they had gone. For many days . . . and years . . . it has been made ready for this occasion. Now it will slip back into its usual tranquil rut.

They are "in the army" now. For all of us whose wedding anniversaries come in June . . . or in any other month . . . their honeymoon will bring a grin, a jest, a tear . . . but always sympathy, and a wish for happy landings when they come back to earth again.

Honeymoon time is the acme of nature's blessings The earth is in tune for it. The summer winds, the open roads, the promise of harvest that is in the air, the flowers, the fruit, the majesty of the night skies . . . they all bring sentimental memories to most of us. And where would this world be without its sentiment?

So to the honeymooners we give salute! We wish them better luck than most of us have had . . . with tires and taxes, with in-laws and mortgages. And with those honeymooners of years ago . . . the ones who exchanged glances during the ceremony with misty eyes . . . we join in welcoming Jack and Polly, their children and their grandchildren, to the America of the future.

NEW RECESSION LIKELY, LANDON TELLS NEW DEAL

Kansan Declares Roosevelt Must Change Policies to Prevent Another Slump.

(By United Press)

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa—Former Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas placed before the nation today the forecast that unless President Roosevelt changed his methods and policies a new depression will start as soon as government spending tapers off.

Landon, 1936 Republican presidential nominee, presented over a national radio network a reply to President Roosevelt's last fireside chat. He praised Mr. Roosevelt's social objectives but sharply criticized the methods and practices of the New Deal.

"As each day passes," said Landon, "it is becoming more and more clear that this depression is purely a political depression—a depression brought on by the methods and policies of the present administration.

Hits Methods, Policies.

"Mind you, I do not say it is caused by the hopes, aspirations and objectives of the present administration—I say it is a depression caused by the methods and policies of the present administration."

Landon levelled his sharpest attack on the New Deal policy of deficit spending..

He declared Republicans were willing to co-operate with Mr. Roosevelt in achieving his objectives if he would adopt sound methods of seeking to attain them.

"We are, of course," he said, "willing to do anything we can to help our country out of this depression; but we predict that unless there is a change in the president's methods and policies, we will be right back in another depression as soon as the government spending splurge is over.

"This has already happened once and it must be obvious that it will happen again unless confidence is restored and political abuses corrected."

"Let him (the president) cease his nagging attacks on business. Let him, instead, undertake to bring about an harmonious working relationship between industry and labor and between them and the public. Let them make a real effort to dissolve monopoly instead of fostering it. Let Mr. Roosevelt foreswear all further attempts to tamper with the supreme court and to get power into his own hands. Let him put a stop to the use of WPA money to buy votes.

"In short, let Mr. Roosevelt only practice what he preaches, and we will not only co-operate with him—we will fight shoulder to shoulder with him to achieve the social progress and the economic recovery which we all desire and need."

Book of the Week

"WERE WE GUINEA PIGS?" by the Class of 1938 University High School, Ohio State University; (Holt: $2).

* * *

THE other day a book by A. Lawrence Lowell president emeritus of Harvard went over the dam. It seemed and still seems, a useful disquisition on the problems of education. But there is a more useful one out today.

This is called "Were We Guinea Pigs?" and it has 55 authors. These are the members of the graduating class of the University High School, Ohio State university, and the book itself is an effort to find out whether, in their six-year experience with "progressive" education, the method had justified itself. "Were We Guinea Pigs?" is published instead of the usual class annual.

The plan grew out of one pupil's suggestion. It was discussed and rediscussed, the class was divided into smaller groups, and each of these produced an outline for the book. A small committee sifted these into two or three complete outlines, and these, with samples of the students' writings, were submitted to a publisher. With extraordinary foresight for a publisher, this one instantly signed a contract.

The book is not a defense of "progressive" education. It merely tells exactly what has happened to this particular class in six years as guinea pigs. Subject by subject, and project by project, it proceeds through the years and through the curriculum. Some things, the young writers feel, did not succeed.

One of these subjects was science, and the other music. It happens that the graduates feel in both cases that the fault lay not with the method, but with the fact that, unfortunately, instructors had to be changed so often that a continuous productive job was impossible.

They believe their experience, on the whole, was very successful. They show much more than this in their text, however. They show a capacity for life and an understanding of the co-operative processes necessary to successful living far beyond most adults. Furthermore, as in the case of certain other co-operative writing, ventures (such as the Federal Writers' Project state guides) they show that such proceedings can turn out elastic, expressive, economical prose. "Were We Guinea Pigs?" even has humor.

No Foreign Domination, Franco's Pledge to Britain

REVEALS PLAN TO RULE SPAIN AT WAR'S END

Sure of Victory, Insurgent General to First Establish Military Dictatorship.

(By United Press)

LONDON—Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Spanish nationalist leader, has given the British government definite assurances that he will tolerate no foreign intervention or domination in Spain if the insurgents win the civil war, it was said today in what was believed to be an unimpeachable quarter.

Sir Robert Hodgson, British agent with the nationalist government who is now in London, conveyed the assurances to Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, it was said.

Favored By Majority.

It was believed that Hodgson indicated a belief that Franco's sentiments had the support of a majority of the Spaniards fighting in the nationalist ranks.

It was believed also that Hodgson conveyed to Chamberlain the statement that Franco intended to institute a military dictatorship for one year after the civil war—taking it for granted that he would win—and that during the year of dictatorship he hoped to achieve complete national "solidarization."

After the first year, it was reported, Franco hoped that some form of election would be possible to decide what should be the future constitution of the state.

Any assurance by Franco that there would be no foreign domination after the war would be news of great importance to Great Britain and France. Any foothold permitted to Italy or Germany in Spain would be regarded as a direct menace to Britain and France.

NEW ATTACKS IN SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI—(AP)—Terrorist attacks against Japanese resumed in Shanghai today on the first anniversary of the China war.

Foreign troops, including United States marines, and police reserves intensified their patrol of sultry streets to guard the International Settlement and the French concession.

Four were killed and five wounded by bombs, grenades and bullets. Two of the dead were Japanese and two were Chinese. A British colonial soldier was injured.

There were flurries of machine-gun fire in outlying districts and reports of sporadic shooting in industrial Pootung, across the Whangpoo river from Shanghai proper, that may have meant a new series of attacks by Chinese guerilla units.

Registration For August Primary Ends on Monday

Mansfielders must register by Monday night to be eligible to vote at the August primary election, A. F. Porter, clerk of the election board, warned today.

City residents who neglected to vote at the last two general elections or who will reach the legal voting age of 21 before election will be required to register before the deadline Monday if they want to vote Aug. 9, Porter said.

Change of address must be reported to the election board, since a voter must live in a precinct at least 20 days before election to be eligible to cast a ballot.

More than 19,000 city residents are registered at the election board office in the basement of the courthouse.

Up and Down THE STREET

Mansfield and Richland county's regular (or occasional) Florida visitors are planning another of their "get-togethers" for Saturday, August 7 at North Lake park, with a covered-dish dinner at noon. Arthur S. Beck, deputy county auditor, is this year's chairman and asks that all Florida "fans" from this section send their name and address to Mrs. Arthur Thornton, 128 West Main street, Shelby so that she can give them the low-down on picnic plans.

What should be good news to Mansfielders planning fishing excursions to Canada this year is the report of Carl (Grocer) Heilman that the northern waters are filled with choice "muskies." In five days, Heilman and his party caught 22 "muskies," the largest, a 22-pounder, being reeled in by his sister, Mrs. Clara Funk. The fishing was so good that Carl plans another trip to Canada in September.

Perseverence and enthusiasm will bring just about what you want, judging by the "luck" of Avery Hand, jr. Avery is a student at Wharton college, the business school of University of Pennsylvania, and although he's majoring in business subjects, he has been keenly interested in archaeology. His professors, however, have refused to permit him to combine the two, but he kept at the idea until one of them agreed to help him, and as a result young Hand has obtained a summer appointment with the National Museum of Ireland, in the archaeology department. He will be stationed at Dublin. Ireland is a particularly interesting field for the archaeologist as the peat bogs preserve long-buried evidence of pre-historic life. Hand is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Avery C. Hand, 37 Sturges avenue.

That old adage about the bad penny always coming back was brought home today to Jimmy Lemley, blind custodian of the concession stand in the courthouse. One of his customers gave Jimmy a badly maimed penny several days ago, and he promptly handed it on to someone else in a handful of change. This morning he reached in his cash drawer and found his bent penny.

POLICE KILLER DIES IN CHAIR

'Death Row' Population Down to 14 as Hamilton Slayer Takes Last Walk.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Death row occupancy was reduced today to 14 with the execution at Ohio penitentiary of William Hobbs, 32, convicted of killing Patrolman Arthur Sponsel during a hold-up at Hamilton.

Hobbs went to his death cringing at sight of the electric chair and chewing nervously on the butt of a cigar. Just before the current was turned on, at 8:45 p. m., Hobbs handed the cigar to a minister and whispered a goodbye.

Three minutes later he was pronounced dead by George W. Keil, prison physician, and Dr. John I. White. Dr. Keil said Hobbs' heart kept beating for an unusually long time.

Hobbs and John Agnew, 34, and Vincent Rose, 23, were surprised by Sponsel while trying to enter a restaurant on April 12, 1937. Sponsel opened fire and Hobbs returned it. He said he saw Sponsel "wobble like a turkey." The patrolman's body was found next morning Hobbs' defense was that he was drunk, but the clemency board refused to intervene.

METCALF SAYS HE'LL GET BACK FUNDS 'STOLEN' FROM STATE

MARIETTA — State Senator Verner E. Metcalf of Marietta, candidate for the Republican nomination as attorney general, today declared his intention to see that funds milched in illegal contracts by the present state administration are restored by legal action.

Metcalf, who is Republican floor leader in the senate, and who was a member of the special senate committee investigating charges of graft in the government of Ohio, asserted today that the "state has been robbed in illegal contracts, not only by collusion in the highway department, but in trucking contracts in the liquor department and in purchasing for state institutions."

Exposing these operations is not sufficient, he stated. "To carry the work of the senate graft investigation to a logical conclusion, the money must be recovered in the name of the taxpayers of Ohio."

Metcalf pointed to the injunction issued in a Columbus court restraining the Davey adminstration from paying the "hot mix contracts," to the report of the Davey-appointed group of university engineers whose findings corroborated the senate investigators, and the indictments in the five per cent campaign fund cases.

"These all prove that the graft quiz was no 'politically-inspired Russian inquisition,' as Davey called it, but a genuine crusade for honesty and legality in public affairs," Metcalf said.

On April 19, Metcalf warned civil service employes to report to law enforcement officers any attempt to collect from them for Gov. Davey's campaign fund. This led to the indictment of the governor's political aids last week.

FORMER DEPUTY SLAIN, FORMER MINER JAILED

Fresh Outbreak of Shootings Occurs, Government Speeds Anti-Union Hearing.

(By International News Service)

LONDON, Ky. -The law of the gun still struggles for the upper hand in "bloody Harlan" county today.

As the government's anti-union trial against a group of coal operators neared the end of its seventh week in this supposedly neutral place, the second man closely linked to the case was slain near here last night.

He was Frank White, 36, a former deputy sheriff and one of the score of erstwhile peace officers among the defendants accused of a long and ruthless campaign against unionists in the coal mine area southeast of here

Wounded Critically.

Lee Fleenor, another defendant and former deputy, was placed under arrest only yesterday for the shooting of a man who had once been convicted of murdering his father. The victim was in a critical condition today.

Lester Smithers, a government witness, was shot to death several weeks ago near Harlan, supposedly as the result of a personal quarrel

Whatever the immediate background of the three shootings, however, authorities were convinced that the reason for all could be traced to the bitter feeling that has gripped the rich bituminous coal fields of eastern Kentucky for more than a decade.

Blood had been shed often enough before. The government trial has brought out numerous incidents in which clubs and guns played a heavy part with violent death the usual climax.

White was shot down as he sat on the porch of a tourist cabin near Corbin, 14 miles south of London, where he had been living since the trial began.

Police arrested Chris Patterson, 40, a non-union miner, and old friend of White's in connection with the shooting.

Hook will join other members of a group of nine men and woman appointed by President Roosevelt to study labor relations and legislation in England and Sweden.

GEN. JOHNSON:

Business may be unhandy in public relations but not cutting own throat.

—By HUGH S. JOHNSON

BETHANY BEACH, Del.—A recent piece here suggested that big business is in the dog house of a considerable public opinion, that this is partly due to unfair political attack, and that business should try to change this situation. It said that collective bargaining is popular and that many people think that much of business is at heart opposed to it.

That piece brought a protest from a good friend—one of our greatest industrial leaders—able, public-spirited and wholly sincere. He says that business believes in collective bargaining but that national unions are not necessary for true collective bargaining. He denies what I have never charged—that business contributed to the depression and closes by reminding me that there is no such organization in business as would permit it to take any action to improve its public relations.

* * *

The writer has fought a long and successful fight against outside unionization and I know that his own labor relations are among the best in industry — operating through a company union. He got a pretty raw deal in his contact with the first labor relations board. Up to that time, he had been more genuinely sympathetic to the first New Deal than any industrialist I know. Now he fights the Third New Deal on more fronts than one, but purely on principle and conviction. I cite this letter because it is typical and, as I think, proves the point of my other piece.

* * *

All employers are not as fair in their labor relations as this one. It is a pretty general conviction that it is impossible in a company union to have the independence necessary to genuine collective bargaining. The fear of the boss and the loss of the job are always there and it is just as easy for a foreman to say he fired a man for dropping a monkey wrench as to admit he was fired for union activity. In spite of such bright exceptions as this company union, the general experience is against them. Furthermore, independent unionism is the spirit of the law of the land. Business can't take a stand against it and remain in a state of public grace.

* * *

Of course, business would do nothing to start or deepen depression. That is just as absurd as to say that government deliberately did that. The business of business is business, and a businessman will do business wherever it is humanly possible, but business has done little to refute that unfair charge.

It is true that business is an unconnected aggregation of hundreds of thousands of separate units and can't act as one. Just the same, whatever unfavorable public opinion there is was created by it and its leaders could do much to improve the condition.

The main trouble is lawyers and publicity "experts." Lawyers who counsel last-ditch fights on some shoe-string of legalistic right against popular legislation, win their fees but generally lose the case in two courts—the juridical one and the court of public opinion.

* * *

Many business concerns and associations have "public relations" men who write speeches for the boss, and regularly get out sheafs of mimeographed press clip sheets—just like the millions of Washington governmental handouts. As long as they are simply news of constructive developments, that is all to the good, but it is bad business and bad judgment for the head of a business of millions of stockholders to be handing out political propaganda adverse to government as a constant practice.

The rift between business and the administration is one of our greatest misfortunes. Both sides are to blame—government more than business—but is that any reason for business to continue to be to blame at all?

Hollywood Speaks---

By ROBBIN COONS

Robbin Coons, our Hollywood columnist, is in New York to see what movie actvities are like in the east.

NEW YORK—It seems odd for a business whose most popular stars have been personalities rather than dramatic artists, but the screen still is looking for people who can act.

And it is inability to deliver the dramatic goods that beats most eastern candidates out of a one-way ticket to Hollywood, says Boris Kaplan.

Kaplan heads the only major studio talent school in the east. His office high in the Paramount building overlooks the human flood of Broadway, but his "eyes"—three scouts and various key city contacts—scan the entire territory east of the Mississippi.

* * *

"It's not difficult," he says, "to find pretty girls. It's tougher to find pretty girls with attractive, glowing personality. It's still more difficult to find girls like that who have pleasing voices. About 75 per cent of the candidates flop on dialogue. And then comes the last hurdle—dramatic ability. It floors 95 per cent."

The eastern school gives each prospect at least six weeks of intensive training before deciding to put out the $500 to $1,000 it costs to give a screen test. Sometimes, with an exceptionally promising failure, it works overtime, or gives a second chance. Fred MacMurray had the looks and personality from the start, but he couldn't begin to act. They kept him on. Fred still can't act, but he makes a pretty good stab at it—and it's people like MacMurray who justify the cost of the talent hunts.

This New York school sent Paramount people like Frances Farmer, John Howard, Dorothy Lamour, Olympe Bradna, Eleanore Whitney and Louise Campbell. It sent each to the coast fully tested and contracted.

* * *

There are supposed to be 21 different sources of talent to keep an eye on. The stage, of course, with its road and summer stock companies and little theaters. College produced John Howard—a scout heard him give a dramatic recital. Hotel and floor shows are covered, restaurants, stores, sports, what's left of vaudeville, and even, surprisingly enough, lectures. Lads fresh from college, picking up a dollar here and there with talks, never know when they'll be snatched up for pictures.

There's a waiting list a mile long for acceptance in the school. Once "discovered," the prospect has to wait his turn for training. Everybody wants to get into films, or did you know?

Book of the Week

"WERE WE GUINEA PIGS?" by the Class of 1938 University High School, Ohio State University; (Holt· $2)

* * *

THE other day a book by A Lawrence Lowell president emeritus of Harvard went over the dam It seemed and still seems a useful disquisition on the problems of education But there is a more useful one out today

This is called "Were We Guinea Pigs?" and it has 55 authors These are the members of the graduating class of the University High School, Ohio State university and the book itself is an effort to find out whether, in their six-year experience with "progressive" education the method had justified itself "Were We Guinea Pigs?" is published instead of the usual class annual

The plan grew out of one pupil's suggestion It was discussed and rediscussed, the class was divided into smaller groups, and each of these produced an outline for the book A small committee sifted these into two or three complete outlines, and these, with samples of the students' writings, were submitted to a publisher With extraordinary foresight for a publisher, this one instantly signed a contract

The book is not a defense of "progressive" education It merely tells exactly what has happened to this particular class in six years as guinea pigs Subject by subject, and project by project, it proceeds through the years and through the curriculum Some things the young writers feel, did not succeed.

One of these subjects was science, and the other music It happens that the graduates feel in both cases that the fault lay not with the method, but with the fact that, unfortunately, instructors had to be changed so often that a continuous productive job was impossible.

They believe their experience, on the whole, was very successful. They show much more than this in their text, however. They show a capacity for life and an understanding of the co-operative processes necessary to successful living far beyond most adults Furthermore, as in the case of certain other co operative writing, ventures (such as the Federal Writers' Project state guides) they show that such proceedings can turn out elastic, expressive, economical prose "Were We Guinea Pigs?" even has humor

REVEALS PLAN TO RULE SPAIN AT WAR'S END

Sure of Victory, Insurgent General to First Establish Military Dictatorship.

(By United Press)

LONDON—Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Spanish nationalist leader, has given the British government definite assurances that he will tolerate no foreign intervention or domination in Spain if the insurgents win the civil war, it was said today in what was believed to be an unimpeachable quarter.

Sir Robert Hodgson, British agent with the nationalist government who is now in London, conveyed the assurances to Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, it was said.

Favored By Majority.

It was believed that Hodgson indicated a belief that Franco's sentiments had the support of a majority of the Spaniards fighting in the nationalist ranks.

It was believed also that Hodgson conveyed to Chamberlain the statement that Franco intended to institute a military dictatorship for one year after the civil war—taking it for granted that he would win—and that during the year of dictatorship he hoped to achieve complete national "solidarization."

After the first year, it was reported, Franco hoped that some form of election would be possible to decide what should be the future constitution of the state.

Any assurance by Franco that there would be no foreign domination after the war would be news of great importance to Great Britain and France. Any foothold permitted to Italy or Germany in Spain would be regarded as a direct menace to Britain and France.

NEW ATTACKS IN SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI—(AP)—Terrorist attacks against Japanese resumed in Shanghai today on the first anniversary of the China war.

Foreign troops, including United States marines, and police reserves intensified their patrol of sultry streets to guard the International Settlement and the French concession.

Four were killed and five wounded by bombs, grenades and bullets. Two of the dead were Japanese and two were Chinese. A British colonial soldier was injured.

There were flurries of machine-gun fire in outlying districts and reports of sporadic shooting in industrial Pootung, across the Whangpoo river from Shanghai proper, that may have meant a new series of attacks by Chinese guerilla units.

Registration For August Primary Ends on Monday

Mansfielders must register by Monday night to be eligible to vote at the August primary election, A. F. Porter, clerk of the election board, warned today.

City residents who neglected to vote at the last two general elections or who will reach the legal voting age of 21 before election will be required to register before the deadline Monday if they want to vote Aug. 9, Porter said.

Change of address must be reported to the election board, since a voter must live in a precinct at least 20 days before election to be eligible to cast a ballot.

Up and Down THE STREET

Mansfield and Richland county's regular (or occasional) Florida visitors are planning another of their "get-togethers" for Saturday, August 7 at North Lake park, with a covered-dish dinner at noon. Arthur S. Beck, deputy county auditor, is this year's chairman and asks that all Florida "fans" from this section send their name and address to Mrs. Arthur Thornton, 128 West Main street, Shelby so that she can give them the low-down on picnic plans.

What should be good news to Mansfielders planning fishing excursions to Canada this year is the report of Carl (Grocer) Heilman that the northern waters are filled with choice "muskies." In five days, Heilman and his party caught 22 "muskies," the largest, a 22-pounder, being reeled in by his sister, Mrs. Clara Funk. The fishing was so good that Carl plans another trip to Canada in September.

Perseverence and enthusiasm will bring just about what you want, judging by the "luck" of Avery Hand, jr. Avery is a student at Wharton college, the business school of University of Pennsylvania, and although he's majoring in business subjects, he has been keenly interested in archaeology. His professors, however, have refused to permit him to combine the two, but he kept at the idea until one of them agreed to help him, and as a result young Hand has obtained a summer appointment with the National Museum of Ireland, in the archaeology department. He will be stationed at Dublin. Ireland is a particularly interesting field for the archaeologist as the peat bogs preserve long-buried evidence of pre-historic life. Hand is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Avery C. Hand, 37 Sturges avenue.

That old adage about the bad penny always coming back was brought home today to Jimmy Lemley, blind custodian of the concession stand in the courthouse. One of his customers gave Jimmy a badly maimed penny several days ago, and he promptly handed it on to someone else in a handful of change. This morning he reached in his cash drawer and found his bent penny.

POLICE KILLER DIES IN CHAIR

'Death Row' Population Down to 14 as Hamilton Slayer Takes Last Walk.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Death row occupancy was reduced today to 14 with the execution at Ohio penitentiary of William Hobbs, 32, convicted of killing Patrolman Arthur Sponsel during a hold-up at Hamilton.

Hobbs went to his death cringing at sight of the electric chair and chewing nervously on the butt of a cigar. Just before the current was turned on, at 8:45 p. m., Hobbs handed the cigar to a minister and whispered a goodbye.

Three minutes later he was pronounced dead by George W. Keil, prison physician, and Dr John I. White. Dr. Keil said Hobbs' heart kept beating for an unusually long time.

Hobbs and John Agnew, 34, and Vincent Rose, 23, were surprised by Sponsel while trying to enter a restaurant on April 12, 1937. Sponsel opened fire and Hobbs returned it. He said he saw Sponsel "wobble like a turkey." The patrolman's body was found next morning. Hobbs' defense was that he was drunk, but the clemency board refused to intervene.

METCALF SAYS HE'LL GET BACK FUNDS 'STOLEN' FROM STATE

MARIETTA — State Senator Verner E. Metcalf of Marietta, candidate for the Republican nomination as attorney general, today declared his intention to see that funds milched in illegal contracts by the present state administration are restored by legal action.

Metcalf, who is Republican floor leader in the senate, and who was a member of the special senate committee investigating charges of graft in the government of Ohio, asserted today that the "state has been robbed in illegal contracts, not only by collusion in the highway department, but in trucking contracts in the liquor department and in purchasing for state institutions."

Exposing these operations is not sufficient, he stated. "To carry the work of the senate graft investigation to a logical conclusion, the money must be recovered in the name of the taxpayers of Ohio."

Metcalf pointed to the injunction issued in a Columbus court restraining the Davey adminstration from paying the "hot mix contracts," to the report of the Davey-appointed group of university engineers whose findings corroborated the senate investigators, and the indictments in the five per cent campaign fund cases.

"These all prove that the graft quiz was no 'politically-inspired Russian inquisition,' as Davey called it, but a genuine crusade for honesty and legality in public affairs," Metcalf said.

On April 19, Metcalf warned civil service employes to report to law enforcement officers any attempt to collect from them for Gov. Davey's campaign fund. This led to the indictment of the governor's political aids last week.

YOUTH STRICKEN

Plymouth Boy, 17, Dies From Lockjaw in Elyria.

PLYMOUTH — James DeWitt, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur DeWitt of Plymouth, died of lockjaw at the Elyria Memorial hospital Wednesday afternoon.

Besides his parents he is survived by four sisters, Mrs. James Barcelona, Tampa, Fla.; Mrs. James Kinsel, Beaver Falls, Pa.; Marjorie and Shirley, at home; and three brothers, Thomas, Raymond and William, all at home.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at the Plymouth Lutheran church, with Rev. M. A. Stull of Youngstown who was formerly pastor here, officiating. Burial will be in Greenlawn cemetery.

FORMER DEPUTY SLAIN, FORMER MINER JAILED

Fresh Outbreak of Shootings Occurs, Government Speeds Anti-Union Hearing.

(By International News Service)

LONDON, Ky. —The law of the gun still struggles for the upper hand in "bloody Harlan" county today.

As the government's anti-union trial against a group of coal operators neared the end of its seventh week in this supposedly neutral place, the second man closely linked to the case was slain near here last night.

He was Frank White, 36, a former deputy sheriff and one of the score of erstwhile peace officers among the defendants accused of a long and ruthless campaign against unionists in the coal mine area southeast of here

Wounded Critically.

Lee Fleenor, another defendant and former deputy, was placed under arrest only yesterday for the shooting of a man who had once been convicted of murdering his father. The victim was in a critical condition today.

Lester Smithers, a government witness, was shot to death several weeks ago near Harlan, supposedly as the result of a personal quarrel

Whatever the immediate background of the three shootings, however, authorities were convinced that the reason for all could be traced to the bitter feeling that has gripped the rich bituminous coal fields of eastern Kentucky for more than a decade.

Blood had been shed often enough before. The government trial has brought out numerous incidents in which clubs and guns played a heavy part with violent death the usual climax.

White was shot down as he sat on the porch of a tourist cabin near Corbin, 14 miles south of London, where he had been living since the trial began.

Police arrested Chris Patterson, 40, a non-union miner, and old friend of White's in connection with the shooting.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Charles Hook, president of the American Rolling Mill company, joined with Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper in an optimistic forecast for American business as they sailed late yesterday for Europe.

Hook said he thought business "could go only one way—and that is up", and Roper declared that "the upswing is here to stay."

Hook will join other members of a group of nine men and woman appointed by President Roosevelt to study labor relations and legislation in England and Sweden.

GEN. JOHNSON:

Business may be unhandy in public relations but not cutting own throat.

—By HUGH S. JOHNSON

BETHANY BEACH, Del.—A recent piece here suggested that big business is in the dog house of a considerable public opinion, that this is partly due to unfair political attack, and that business should try to change this situation. It said that collective bargaining is popular and that many people think that much of business is at heart opposed to it.

That piece brought a protest from a good friend—one of our greatest industrial leaders—able, public-spirited and wholly sincere. He says that business believes in collective bargaining but that national unions are not necessary for true collective bargaining. He denies what I have never charged—that business contributed to the depression and closes by reminding me that there is no such organization in business as would permit it to take any action to improve its public relations.

* * *

The writer has fought a long and successful fight against outside unionization and I know that his own labor relations are among the best in industry — operating through a company union. He got a pretty raw deal in his contact with the first labor relations board. Up to that time, he had been more genuinely sympathetic to the first New Deal than any industrialist I know. Now he fights the Third New Deal on more fronts than one, but purely on principle and conviction. I cite this letter because it is typical and, as I think, proves the point of my other piece.

* * *

All employers are not as fair in their labor relations as this one. It is a pretty general conviction that it is impossible in a company union to have the independence necessary to genuine collective bargaining. The fear of the boss and the loss of the job are always there and it is just as easy for a foreman to say he fired a man for dropping a monkey wrench as to admit he was fired for union activity. In spite of such bright exceptions as this company union, the general experience is against them. Furthermore, independent unionism is the spirit of the law of the land. Business can't take a stand against it and remain in a state of public grace.

* * *

Of course, business would do nothing to start or deepen depression. That is just as absurd as to say that government deliberately did that. The business of business is business, and a businessman will do business wherever it is humanly possible, but business has done little to refute that unfair charge.

It is true that business is an unconnected aggregation of hundreds of thousands of separate units and can't act as one. Just the same, whatever unfavorable public opinion there is was created by it and its leaders could do much to improve the condition.

The main trouble is lawyers and publicity "experts." Lawyers who counsel last-ditch fights on some shoe-string of legalistic right against popular legislation, win their fees but generally lose the case in two courts—the juridical one and the court of public opinion.

* * *

Many business concerns and associations have "public relations" men who write speeches for the boss, and regularly get out sheafs of mimeographed press clip sheets—just like the millions of Washington governmental handouts. As long as they are simply news of constructive developments, that is all to the good, but it is bad business and bad judgment for the head of a business of millions of stockholders to be handing out political propaganda adverse to government as a constant practice.

The rift between business and the administration is one of our greatest misfortunes. Both sides are to blame—government more than business—but is that any reason for business to continue to be to blame at all?

Hollywood Speaks---

By ROBBIN COONS

Robbin Coons, our Hollywood columnist, is in New York to see what movie activities are like in the east.

NEW YORK—It seems odd for a business whose most popular stars have been personalities rather than dramatic artists, but the screen still is looking for people who can act.

And it is inability to deliver the dramatic goods that beats most eastern candidates out of a one-way ticket to Hollywood, says Boris Kaplan.

Kaplan heads the only major studio talent school in the east. His office high in the Paramount building overlooks the human flood of Broadway, but his "eyes"—three scouts and various key city contacts — scan the entire territory east of the Mississippi.

* * *

"It's not difficult," he says, "to find pretty girls. It's tougher to find pretty girls with attractive, glowing personality. It's still more difficult to find girls like that who have pleasing voices. About 75 per cent of the candidates flop on dialogue. And then comes the last hurdle—dramatic ability. It floors 95 per cent."

The eastern school gives each prospect at least six weeks of intensive training before deciding to put out the $500 to $1,000 it costs to give a screen test. Sometimes, with an exceptionally promising failure, it works overtime, or gives a second chance. Fred MacMurray had the looks and personality from the start, but he couldn't begin to act. They kept him on. Fred still can't act, but he makes a pretty good stab at it—and it's people like MacMurray who justify the cost of the talent hunts.

This New York school sent Paramount people like Frances Farmer, John Howard, Dorothy Lamour, Olympe Bradna, Eleanore Whitney and Louise Campbell. It sent each to the coast fully tested and contracted.

* * *

There are supposed to be 21 different sources of talent to keep an eye on. The stage, of course, with its road and summer stock companies and little theaters. College produced John Howard—a scout heard him give a dramatic recital. Hotel and floor shows are covered, restaurants, stores, sports, what's left of vaudeville, and even, surprisingly enough, lectures. Lads fresh from college, picking up a dollar here and there with talks, never know when they'll be snatched up for pictures.

There's a waiting list a mile long for acceptance in the school. Once "discovered," the prospect has to wait his turn for training. Everybody wants to get into films, or did you know?

—Advice—

Girls Ask Why Boys Are Rude

By VIRGINIA LEE

A few among many is the curious signature some girls have chosen for their letter wherein they beg me to discuss in this column boys in the 'teen age (16-20) and their thoughtlessness or rudeness.

The girls in question attend young people's meetings at the church Sunday nights, and the boys do not seem inclined to look after them and see that they get home all right. The girls, in fact, have to beg for rides, the boys ignoring them Then the boys act as if the girls should be very thankful for the ride. The girls could go home on bus or car, of course, they say, but most of them live too far away to make it practicable.

They would like the boys to be courteous, too, and help them on with their wraps, pick up things they drop, etc., but they hardly expect that, they state.

"We're not asking to be treated as something fragile," they write, "'Them days are gone forever.' All we want is to be treated as pals, not like stray dogs. Please tell us, or the boys, what to do about it."

Boys of that age often are odd critters, girls. They feel very conscious of themselves, very awkward and unsure of themselves, and when a group of them get together, they are apt to act very superior to all females their own age. I've seen them, with arms around each other's shoulders, standing in groups watching the dancing at a social affair, while girls were sitting around, just dying to dance, but the boys wouldn't ask them.

These boys were of good families, too, but they were just at that age when they seemed to need each other's support and to feel too conspicuous if they broke away from the gang and asked a girl for a dance or for her company or anything

Shouldn't Go to Meetings.

Really, I don't think your parents should permit you to go to these church meetings, if you have no way of getting home, except to depend on these thoughtless young men who probably have their own plans for the remainder of the evening

If your fathers cannot come for you or your brothers or any other safe way to be found to get you home, I think it would be better if you stayed home or enlisted the help of some other adult to get the boys to see that you are looked after.

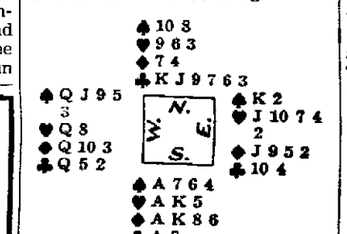
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

HAVE A REAL REASON

HAPHAZARD false carding is indulged in by many fair players The best of them play the "honest" card as a regular thing and indulge in unnatural plays on the defensive only when they have in mind a more or less definite ruse they are trying to put over on the declarer. When well chosen, such tactics can be devastating.



(Dealer. North. Both sides vulnerable).

North and South reached a contract of 3-No Trump on this deal after an opening bid of 1-No Trump by South, 2-Clubs by North, 2-No Trumps by South, 3-Clubs by North and 3-No Trumps by South.

West led the spade Q. on which dummy placed the 8 and East the K. South allowed the trick to hold and East returned the 2 Reading East from his play as having no more spades, and as the club finesse would be taken to him South went in with the spade A on the second trick.

From that point on the play is simple if the club finesse works. South played the club A and East, having heard clubs denied twice by South, figured there was a chance West might hold the missing honor. He therefore dropped his 10 on the A. This gave declarer something to think about and he guessed wrong. He read East for the Q so he went up with the K on the next round East's play saved the day for his side, as it limited declarer to two club tricks

Lotions Aid Reduction In Spots

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

Embarrassing bulges just can't be tolerated if you want to make any sort of an appearance in summer clothes. Of course diet and exercise are the two most accepted methods of eliminating those unwanted bunches of fat, but since keeping trim is such a necessity we are passing along another aid to slenderness that can either be used by itself or in conjunction with diet and exercise.

It's particularly important to have a sylph-like form during the warm months because you can't cover a lumpy figure with a mink coat as you can in cold weather. So we are going to give you several routines as sort of a last call to slimness

Today's suggestion is shower baths and reducing lotions Showers can really be taken to help wear off fat as well as to invigorate and cleanse. Of course you will need one of those forceful ones that will massage and stimulate as the water strikes your body. First turn on your shower and have the water warm. Rub yourself all over with lots of soap and then turn it on as hot as you can stand it. Concentrate the hot streams on your hips and stomach, if that's where you have bulges. Let it run for some time Your skin will take on a pinkish glow.

Next turn the water gradually from hot to warm and then to tepid, cool and cold. While you are under the exhilarating cold water massage your body briskly with your bath brush. The whole shower will only take about ten minutes and you will have given yourself a delightful home water and brush massage.

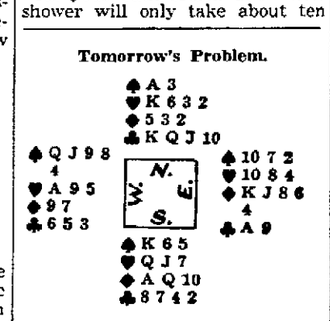
Rub Dry.

Put a large absorbent bath towel around your shoulders and take another one to rub your body dry. After you are thoroughly dry you can apply your reducing lotion. You will find a marvelous reduction in your measurements after two or three weeks of this treatment.

Here is an excellent reducing lotion that you can make at home. The ingredients are camphor and rubbing alcohol. Shave two one-ounce cubes of camphor and add the shavings to one pint of alcohol. Allow the mixture to stand for twenty-four hours so that the camphor can melt thoroughly.

Light brown sugar gives a good flavor to baked apples or apple pudding

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North, North-South vulnerable.)

What is West's correct lead against South's contract of 3-No Trumps East having bid 1-Diamond after North's 1-Club bid?

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Uncle Dicky!"

My husband turned at Bill's voice, and regarded his eldest nephew benignly.

"Yes, Bill. What's on your mind?"

"Can I—may I—go along with Hank?" he asked. "I wouldn't make any trouble, and—I'd like to be with him."

"Gee!" Hank looked at him gratefully. "Would I like to have you!"

Dicky's relief was evident in his face, and I scored myself for the suspicion that part of his relief was an allaying of the fear that some call for him from the mysterious source which appeared to be threatening him might make it impossible for him to remain with Hank during his visit to the specialist, or might even compel him to send the boy in alone.

Dicky Gives Consent.

"Of course you can go, Bill," he said. "I'll be mighty glad to have you, and it's fine of you to think of it."

He shot a glance toward Junior and Roderick, still absorbed in their game of checkers, and came close to the boys.

"Don't let the kids know," he said.

"That will be splendid," Dicky said with grave approval as Katherine excused herself for the ostensible reason of calling the specialist with whom she already had made an appointment for Hank the next day. And I think I alone heard the little sigh of relief which he sent after her. His histrionic exhibition had been successful in making Hank believe he needed to consult a specialist, without revealing the real reason for which he was being taken to the eminent authority upon neurotic complexes

He had been almost too successful, I told myself as I heard the stark fear in Hank's voice when Katherine had left the room.

"Suppose," he said, and gulped down a fear before he could go on. "Suppose this doctor says I can't go back to school?"

"We'll cross that bridge when we come to it, lad," he assured him for the second time. "But I really don't anticipate his telling you anything like that."

Bill's eyes met mine with a question in them which, with sudden intuition, I read, and I nodded and said in the "prison voice" from the side of his mouth, inaudible so short a distance away, "but we'll have to go to the city tonight after they go to bed. You'd better go up now and get packed, so we won't have to wait once the youngsters have gone to bed."

"I dont' need you, Hank," Bill said hurriedly. "You're pretty well shot. You'd better stay down here with Aunt Madge and rest. I know everything we both need and I can pack everything for us both in a jiffy. How long will we be gone, Uncle Dicky?"

"Just overnight," Dicky replied, "unless Dr. —— wants to see you a second time. But I doubt that he will. However, better take sufficient changes of everything for two days."

Bill Leaves to Pack.

"I'll just do that," Bill replied and left upon the word. And Hank, without a single protest, slumped exhausted into the nearest arm chair, from which presently his voice emerged, thin, reedy, anxious

"Suppose Aunt Katherine can't get hold of the doctor, what then?" he asked.

"Then we'll try somebody else," Dicky assured him, and keep on trying until we get somebody. But isn't that Aunt Katherine coming back?"

It was indeed her light footsteps coming down the hall, and the triumphant pleasure in her face and voice would have deceived anybody into thinking she had just returned from success in a ticklish interview, instead of hiding herself until sufficient time should elapse for her to announce the triumph scored before dinner.

"Bring on your laurel wreaths," she chanted.

"I take it you landed him," Dicky said.

"Did I ever!" she answered. "He will see Hank at 1 tomorrow. Is that satisfactory?"

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, July 8.

Much progress and pleasure mark this day, according to the astral operations. Things should move at a lively pace in both business and private affairs. While there are signs of much success in ambitious projects, yet there is need for precaution, restraint in indulgences and extravagance in the pursuit of pleasure. Speculative enterprise might also prove perilous.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very successful, prosperous and happy year, despite a bereavement or sorrow. Business as well as social life are under high stimuli, with much expenditure or outlay to keep both going at a quick pace. It might be well to be conservative in financial extravagance.

A child born on this day may have large and expansive ideas and aspirations, in both its business and private lives. Many of these may succeed, despite losses and the menace of extravagance or speculation.

Rubaiyat, World Classic, Brings Romance.

All the beauty and wisdom, joy and sadness of life are summed up in the immortal Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam.

No wonder countless generations have quoted the Persian poet's matchless words:

"Ah, my Beloved, fill the Cup that clears
Today of past Regrets and future Fears:
Tomorrow!—Why, Tomorrow I may be . . . "

And in reckless mood, who hasn't felt the force of the famous couplet:

"Ah, take the Cash, and let the Credit go,
Nor heed the rumble of a distant Drum!"

Or mourned with those lovers of centuries ago:

"Yet Ah, that Spring should vanish with the Rose!
That Youth's sweet-scented manuscript should close!"

You'll take life-long pleasure in our richly illustrated translation of the 101 exquisite verses of the Rubaiyat. Includes an absorbing biography of Omar Khayyam—poet, philosopher, astronomer.
